What the Red Cross does with the blood you donate

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE CARMEL CHAPTER of the American Red Cross mails out 18,000 fund-raising letters every spring to residents of its 600 square mile service area.

Last year the Carmel Red Cross raised $48,000 through this appeal, and this year it hopes to raise $50,000, according to executive director Jean Snow. About 20 percent of the local fund contributions are diverted to the national Red Cross.

"Giving is safe and simple! Blood is always needed! People are the only source! We hope you will try to help us! Become a donor!" says one of the Carmel Red Cross' appeals for blood donations at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

During the 1980-81 fiscal year, 1,048 people from the Carmel, Carmel Valley, Big Sur, Pebble Beach service area of the Carmel Red Cross chapter responded to the appeal and made blood donations.

Those blood donations, just like other blood donations to Red Cross programs nationally, are sold to hospitals for a "processing fee," which the patient is charged as part of his hospital bill. Although the Red Cross eschews any suggestion that the donated blood is actually "sold," the processing fees are often the same as the charges for blood sold through non-Red Cross hospitals.

For the 100 years of its existence, the Red Cross has operated virtually exempt from public scrutiny, but largely as a result of the Red Cross' first-ever publication of a combined balance sheet showing net assets of $500 million, questions have been raised about the organization's repeated pleas for charity.

DAVID ZIMMERMAN, a Washington-based medical writer, recently published an article on the American Red Cross in Jack Anderson's magazine, The Investigator, which prompted some angry denials by national Red Cross officials.

"Red Cross does much good for many people but an investigation of its finances and operations shows that America's largest charity is rich, not poor. It also has been secretive, concealing income and substantial wealth through incomplete and confusing accounting practices," Zimmerman wrote.

Among other things, the Zimmerman article states that the Red Cross gets as much as 14 percent of the monies from United Way funds nationally — funds which would be available to other charitable causes otherwise.

The Red Cross, according to Zimmerman, is locked in a duel to the death with the American Association of Blood Banks, the major alternative supplier of blood in the United States, as part of the Red Cross' campaign to become the nation's sole supplier of blood.

Well-meaning persons are deliberately misled into thinking their blood donations can be applied as credits toward their own, or others', hospital bills, when in fact the Red Cross abandoned its credit system in 1976, Zimmerman charged.

Is the Carmel Red Cross chapter profiteering in blood donations, taking funds from more worthy local charities, and helping to enrich an already-bloated Red Cross national bureaucracy?

Jean Snow, executive director of the Carmel chapter, provided the Pine Cone / Outlook with a copy of a lengthy rebuttal by Robert Wick, executive vice-president of the American Red Cross, to allegations in the recent Zimmerman article.

"Article filled with distortions, innuendoes, faulty conclusions, and outright falsehoods," the teletyped message from Red Cross headquarters in Washington states. "The fact is that ARC is large and requires large sums of money to deliver its wide-ranging services to people.

"Total assets are distributed among 3,078 chapters, 57 regional blood services, and the national sector consisting of national headquarters, four field offices, 59 division headquarters units, 184 offices on military bases and in military hospitals worldwide and 56 field units in Veterans Administration offices. These assets are not sitting in a Washington, D.C. bank.

"ARC spent $455 million in fiscal year 1979-80 to provide human services to 18 million Americans, including disaster victims, refugees, the nation's armed forces, veterans and their families, the elderly, handicapped, terminally ill and institutionalized, and young people in trouble; establish and conduct public education courses in first aid, CPR, lifesaving, nursing, swimming and boat safety for students, housewives, public employees, industrial, commercial and office workers.

"Compared with other voluntary health and welfare organizations, that's a formidable record," Wick proclaimed.

United Way, but raised all of its operating revenues through direct mail appeals and from bequests. When the need arises for repair or replacement of any of the three ambulances owned and operated by the Carmel Red Cross, a separate fund campaign is launched.

For the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1980, the Carmel Red Cross raised a total of $48,585, of which 21 percent was "shared" with the national office, a total of $8,685. The annual report prepared by the Carmel chapter for the 1979-80 fiscal year showed total assets as of June 30, 1980 of $56,705.

A total of $40,600 of that amount is held in certificates of deposit with the balance in checking and savings accounts. The amount held in certificates of deposit is "earmarked for ambulance replacement and repair," said Mrs. Snow.

The Carmel chapter of the Red Cross enjoyed the services of 326 volunteers last year, according to Mrs. Snow. They served in a variety of capacities, from office workers to water safety instructors.

"These volunteers contribute a substantial number of hours fulfilling the chapter's program of services," states the annual audit of the Carmel Red Cross chapter for 1979-80 prepared by Monterey accountant Dennis Trudeau.

"There is no practicable basis for measuring the monetary value of these volunteers' time and consequently no amounts attributable thereto have been included in the financial statements."

'The Red Cross is backed by the AFL-CIO, which wants a monolithic, socialistic blood bank system for the United States.'

One of the primary functions of the Carmel Red Cross chapter is the operation of three ambulances, without fee, in the service area. The three vehicles travelled a total of 15,446 miles and answered 8,825 calls during the 1979-80 fiscal year. Figures for the 1980-81 fiscal year are not yet compiled.

In addition, the local Red Cross chapter provided services to 58 families of members of the military and veterans, as compared with services rendered to nine civilian families in the area. These services include loans of money, use of wheelchairs, canes, beds and transportation," Mrs. Snow said.

"We definitely provide more services to military than to civilians," she said.

Is the Red Cross hiding its wealth?

"That's a lot of malarkey. The books are open. The Carmel chapter is the only one in the country that provides ambulance service. That's why we're not affiliated with United Way. We couldn't convince United Way that the ambulance service was that important."

Other services provided by the Carmel Red Cross during the 1979-80 fiscal year include safety programs—such as water safety and first aid. A total of 191 courses were taught by the local chapter; 48 instructors were trained; and 1,745 certificates were issued. A total of 436 students participated in Red Cross activities through its youth program, according to information from Mrs. Snow.

A total of 1,630 hours were donated by volunteers who knitted 33 sweaters for veterans' hospitals, and three afghans were made and donated to Carmel Convalescent Hospital by Red Cross volunteers in the Carmel chapter.

COMMUNITY HOSPITAL of the Monterey Peninsula operates its own blood bank in cooperation with the Red Cross, which helps to supply donors. Community Hospital charges patients directly for blood drawn from its own blood bank, but sometimes obtains rare blood types from the San Jose Red Cross blood bank. When it does, the hospital pays Red Cross for the blood and then bills the patient.

The Red Cross charges a basic "processing fee" to hospitals and blood banks, which then pass the charge on to patients, of $52 per unit (pint) of whole blood. By comparison, Community Hospital charges a basic fee of $58 per unit of whole blood for its own blood. When it uses Red Cross blood, Community Hospital charges the Red Cross rate.

At Irwin Memorial Blood Bank in San Francisco, which has become the target of much hostility by Red Cross officials for its pay-as-you-go system, the basic charge is $65 per unit of whole blood. That figure is broken down into a $35 "processing fee" to cover collection costs, the plastic sack which holds the blood, nurses' fees, and other related expenses—the same costs upon which the Red Cross bases its fees.

Irwin Memorial charges an additional $30 replacement deposit fee, which is refunded if and when the patient donates replacement units of blood, or when someone else donates in the patient's name.

It is precisely this system of credits which the Red Cross eliminated in 1976 and with it the accumulated credits of many longtime blood donors, that is the crux of the war between Red Cross and AABB.

Community Hospital has a cooperative arrangement with area hospitals to supply them with blood as needed from its blood bank. Eskaton Hospital in Monterey, for example, receives 100 percent of its blood from the Red Cross and has no full-fledged blood bank.

Eskaton Hospital charges an average of $50 per unit for blood, and must pay Red Cross $52 per unit, according to spokesperson Margie Holman. "We probably lose money," she acknowledged.

Irwin Memorial Blood Bank regularly collects blood at Fort Ord to be sold to the several military hospitals which it serves in the San Francisco Bay Area. On a typical bloodmobile visit to Fort Ord, between 200 to 400 donations are made, said Janet Nelson, Irwin spokesperson.

"The Army has been a big supplier and user of our program," she said.

ALTHOUGH THE UNIT of blood costs basically the same whether it comes from the Red Cross or from an AABB source, such as Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, there are philosophical differences which underlie the two methods of operation.

"The replacement deposit fee is completely refundable when the patient deposits blood or when someone donates in their name," Ms. Nelson said. "Our system allows people the option of replacing blood."

"Irwin comes down to Fort Ord and collects blood," declared the Carmel chapter director, Jean Snow. "Then a place like Oak Knoll (Regional Naval Medical Center in Oakland) pays Irwin for the blood."

"With the Red Cross, that unit of blood is given. The money collected for blood goes to regional (Red Cross offices) and then to national. Red Cross charges the hospital for the blood, but not as much as if they had to charge for the unit. It's a hidden cost, but you're not charged for the blood."

Dr. Donald Avoy, director of the Central California Red Cross Blood Center in San Jose, admitted that the differences between Red Cross and the AABB "have gotten down to a very emotional basis."

"We have some trouble with the fact that at a place like Irwin Memorial Blood Bank, only 30 percent of the blood is every replaced. The Red Cross feels that blood should be available to everyone, including those who are on the periphery—the poor, minorities, the elderly."

"People ask: 'If blood is given, why should it cost anything?" After all expenses of collection and processing are paid, the excess is about $2 per unit. We have to put that away for operating expenses, for the replacement of equipment, like centrifuges."

Mrs. Snow said the local chapter still does arrange credits for persons who receive blood through an AABB facility sometimes.

"We're not completely out of the business of credits," she said. "We do cooperate with the AABB in non-Red Cross areas. We used to do it but the book work was tremendous. Sometimes we phone the Central California office to go through the AABB to give credit in a particular case."

ZIMMERMAN ACCUSED the Red Cross in The Investigator of deceiving blood donors into thinking they can earn a credit for themselves or someone else by "using a dummy, paper credit system to gull prospective donors into believing that they are earning blood credits with their donations, when in fact they are not."

The Carmel chapter of the Red Cross provides donors with cards if they want to donate blood at Community Hospital or in a bloodmobile on behalf of someone else. The card is to be sent to the patient with this message: "Dear _____. Because I was thinking of you, I was a blood donor through the Central California Regional Red Cross Blood Program today. Get well soon."

Dr. David Borucki, director of the blood bank at Community Hospital, sees more than just a clash of philosophies in the dispute between the Red Cross and the AABB.

"The Red Cross is backed by the AFL-CIO, which wants a monolithic, socialistic blood bank system for the United States," Dr. Borucki said. But within the American Association of Blood Banks there is a pluralism of philosophy. The founders of the AABB didn't subscribe to the idea of a monolithic blood bank system.

"I think it's stupid to maintain the credit system. The voluntary donation system can work in an area, such as the Monterey Peninsula, where there are individuals with a sense of community responsibility, but not in areas like New York or Los Angeles."

"The people who operate the Red Cross blood centers are medically-oriented, professional people. The people who work in the Red Cross and AABB centers are often dear friends. In some areas where there are frictions between blood banks, they are the result of personalities."

"Both have the same objectives, but different methods. There needs to be a unified front, either fee or no fee. We should forget about politics and finances, because this has turned some donors off. In the days when we could buy blood, that was fine. But the problem was, if you could buy blood, why was it the responsibility of the person to donate?"

"I don't think it will be settled soon. We will have to live with both systems for a while."

AMBULANCES maintained and operated by the Red Cross include those stationed at the Carmel Fire Department, one at the Carmel Valley Fire Department and one stationed at the State Highway Department maintenance yard in Big Sur.

County moves to bar certain EIRs

THE COUNTY would be able to say "no" to environmental impact reports for projects that are clearly in conflict with zoning and planning laws, under an amendment to the county subdivision ordinance scheduled for public hearing Aug. 12.

The Monterey County Planning Commission will hold the hearing at 10:25 a.m. in supervisors' chambers in the county courthouse in Salinas and make a recommendation on whether the amendment should be adopted by the Board of Supervisors.

Origin of the amendment is the reluctance by both county planning commissioners and supervisors to issue an EIR for the proposed 110-unit condominium project at the Carmel Valley Airport.

Supervisors rejected a request Feb. 3 from developer Gerald Barrick to have an EIR prepared for the project. But the developer re-filed his request with the planning department after the county counsel's office ruled that the supervisors had acted improperly in denying the EIR.

The Board of Supervisors then authorized the preparation of the environmental impact report June 9. Supervisor William Peters of Carmel Valley introduced a motion at the June 23 board meeting to prepare an amendment to the county subdivision ordinance. The motion passed 4-0.

At the time the Board of Supervisors approved the condominium project EIR, opposition to the project based on density and potential groundwater pollution had been expressed by the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee, Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, the Regional Water Quality Control Board, and the Monterey County Planning Commission.

COUNTY ZONING Administrator Robert Slimmon says the proposed airport project is inconsistent with current zoning for the area, which would permit only 30 units in the project. Health officials at both the county and regional level have expressed grave concern about proliferation of septic systems — such as proposed in the condo project — in Carmel Valley.

"We are in no position to reject preliminary subdivision maps which are inconsistent with required plans or contrary to applicable ordinances," county planner Lynn Munday wrote in a memo on the proposed amendment to the planning commission.

"This amendment would allow the planning commission to make a decision to reject preliminary subdivision maps if they fail to conform to applicable plans, ordinances, or statutes."

After public hearing, the planning commission may recommend adoption of the subdivision ordinance amendment to the Board of Supervisors. The proposed amendment states:

"The subdivision committee shall consider the (subdivision) map and thereafter make a report to the planning commission. The report shall contain recommendations and shall set forth the extent of the preliminary or tentative map's compliance to the provisions of this and other applicable ordinances, the general plan, applicable master plans, and any specific plan.

"The planning commission may receive the preliminary map if a negative declaration is recommended and accepted by the commission. If the initial study under the California Environmental Quality Act or the recommendation of the subdivision committee is that the preliminary map is inconsistent with any ordinances, the general, master, or specific plans, the planning commission may refuse to consider it.

"The planning commission, based on the initial study, the recommendation of the subdivision committee, or its own inquiry at public hearing, may require an environmental impact report for the preliminary map.

"The decision of the planning commission on a preliminary map may be appealed to the Board of Supervisors in the same manner as the appeal of a denial of a minor subdivision within the commission's jurisdiction. The subject of the appeal shall be strictly limited to the impartiality or correctness of the decision made by the planning commission; for example, whether the proposed preliminary map is inconsistent with the general plan or whether an EIR is required.

"The planning commission shall receive and consider the report of the subdivision committee together with the initial study. The planning commission, based upon the initial study, the recommendation of the subdivision committee, or its own inquiry at public hearing, may recommend to the Board of Supervisors that an EIR be required under the criteria set forth in the guidelines of the County of Monterey (pursuant to the California Environmental Quality Act of 1970). It shall advise the board which shall then determine whether an EIR is required for the tentative map."

No environmental impact reports prepared during the court-imposed moratorium on new development in Carmel Valley can be certified until revision of the Valley Master Plan is complete. That moratorium was recently extended for another year, until July 1, 1982.

City may act to stop fireworks on the beach

By BABS COROVESIS

THE CARMEL Forestry Commission has asked the City Council to ban fireworks on the beach to protect the vegetation and aesthetic environment.

The commission drafted its recommendation at a meeting on Friday, July 31 and urged the council to ban fireworks and take "any other measures that might protect the beach."

The Forestry Commission action is timely, because a city report on the extent of the damage of this past July 4 celebration and the expense to the city, is scheduled to be presented to the City Council at its Aug. 10 meeting.

Commissioner Bob Evans noted that "part of it is none of our business — but part of it is. I went down to the beach on three occasions (on July 4) and saw people dragging down things across the vegetation on the banks. It was a scene of considerable confusion."

He added that "if the crowd had chosen to get out of hand, there would not have been enough policemen on the Monterey Peninsula to handle it."

Evans said he saw people trampling beach vegetation and breaking off tree limbs for fires. "In general it is something Carmel does not need. That one event (July 4) invites as much damage to the beaches as we get the entire rest of the year."

He recommended that the Forestry Commission go on record as requesting the City Council to take some action before next July 4 that will protect the delicate beach banks.

Forestry Commission Chairman Matt Smith said he had been concerned about the problem for the last three years.

He added that he was "interested in Police Chief Bill Ellis' report (for this year) which showed out of 14 arrests, only one person was from Carmel."

The Commission seemed in a quandry about how much of the July 4 issue was under its jurisdiction. "In a sense it is not our province, and yet it is: the preservation of the beach is our area," Smith said.

Smith described the issue of how to control the Fourth celebration "a hot potato, a barrel of nails." "They (the City Council) seem to be looking for support from somebody on this."

Commissioner Ray Taylor asked why Carmel should be the one, by use of fires and fireworks, "to get all this misery."

Evans said he suspected that it is the fireworks that are drawing all the other people.

"I never go down there on the Fourth. You couldn't drag me down there with a chain,"

Chairman Smith said.

Evans noted that the reason to recommend something to the Council is to show the Forestry Commission's concern over the beach, its banks and what goes on there. He said it was proper that the focus included fires and fireworks.

Commissioner David Maradei said he felt the commission initially was hedging on the issue. "I feel fireworks is the issue, and we should recommend to the City Council that they permanently prohibit them."

Maradei added that if the council decides not to do that for some other reason, it would still be proper for the Forestry Commission to take that stand.

Commissioner Ray Taylor said the issue gets discouraging. "We bring it up. It gets tir-

'Fireworks is the issue, and we should recommend to the City Council that they permanently prohibit them.'

ing trying to protect the beach, the ice plant, the trees. And the only answer after all these years is that we replant the banks," Taylor said.

Maradei noted that "what had been done in the past hasn't worked. So the one thing we can do is try things we've not tried before."

The resolution recommending the ban on fireworks and any other appropriate measures passed unanimously.

In other action the Commission heard from Carol Stratton, vice president of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club. She stated that the club and its 27 members would like to be included in the design of Piccadilly Park and would be willing to provide the labor and care to have annual flowers in the park.

The club also would like to donate a fountain or statue, she said. Another possibility would be for the club to provide a trellis to cover the building wall on one side of the park.

She said the club hoped to see the park reflect "the naturalness of Carmel" rather than become "too arty." The club supported purchase of the land.

"We know what we're getting into. Everybody in this club works. We're not just drinking tea," she told the Forestry Commission.

The commission indicated that the Garden Club's proposal was premature.

"Your group could help a lot later down the line," Commissioner Smith said.

SURREPTITIOUSLY RETURNED, or just regularly returned at the Harrison Memorial Library front desk — either way is fine, just so the library gets back 300 overdue books. The last week of each month has been declared "Amnesty Week" — no fine, no questions asked when overdue books turn up.

Library amnesty

Psst! ... Got any overdue library books you've been too embarrassed to return?

Here's your chance to get rid of the books and your guilty conscience. The Harrison Memorial Library Board voted last week to allow the last week of every month to be "Amnesty Week."

That means no fines, no questions asked — just return the overdue books. If you still feel too inhibited to show your face in the library, you can resort to dressing incognito. Turn up your trenchcoat collar and deposit the books in the book drop on the corner of Sixth Avenue and Lincoln.

The library will begin sending out a new kind of overdue notice this week. It will read:

"We know a good book is hard to put down, but could you please return it?"

According to Librarian Peg Richter, the intent is simply for the library to get back an estimated 300 books that are "still out there somewhere" over the last eight months.

"We do not want to be threatening. We just want the books back. And we aren't interested in the fines, so we decided to have the last week of every month be an amnesty on overdue books," she added.

Flood danger mounts:

Labor union stalls river clearance

By ROBERT MISKIMON

EFFORTS TO CLEAR silt and debris from the Carmel River bed are stalled and may not be undertaken before the onslaught of the winter rains.

The Carmel River Watch, the citizen

"We want to alert the people who live along the river that the project is at a stand still and that we can have further erosion and siltation and possibly flooding," Hughett said."

organization which has spearheaded the effort, places the blame squarely on Operating Engineers Union, Local No. 3 and its business agent, Jack Jackson.

With the cooperation of the Monterey County Flood Control District, the Carmel River Watch has enlisted Fort Ord's 7th Division engineers to remove the debris from the river to reduce the potential for further river bank erosion and flooding this year.

But Fort Ord officials said they would only perform the work if all affected community organizations approved of the project. Neither the county flood control district nor the Carmel River Watch has the funds to implement an extensive river clearance effort.

Consent of all organizations has been obtained, except the Operating Engineers Union, Local No. 3, said Rich Hughett, president of the Carmel River Watch.

Jackson, in a letter to Congressman Leon Panetta, stated that his union "will protest in every way possible to stop the work being done by the Army." Operating Engineers believes that allowing the Army to perform the work as a community service will put its members out of work.

Unless the impasse can be cleared, the river work probably will not be done before the rainy season starts, Hughett warned last week.

"Carmel River Watch efforts to overcome union opposition have now reached a dead end," Hughett said. "Because of union opposition, the extensive and successful efforts to line up support from seven other community groups have come to naught."

"The channel repair project now seems to be blocked indefinitely, until funds become available as part of a comprehensive watershed management program."

EROSION DURING winter rains in 1978 and 1980 left deposits of silt — sand bars — in the middle of the Carmel River channel. The deposits force the river flow against the banks, compounding the erosion problem.

Siltation already has raised the river channel by three to four feet in some areas, which has prompted the flood control district to designate the river bed as being in "emergency" status. However, the local flood control district does not have the funds to undertake clearance of the river bed.

The Carmel River Watch sought unsuccessfully to obtain private, local, state and federal funds for the river clearance before it contacted the Army to seek assistance. Once the Army gave its consent, contingent upon the approval by community organizations, the board of supervisors also supported the effort.

In October, 1980, supervisors designated the Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District as the lead agency to plan and direct the project, which was endorsed by the Fish and Wildlife Service, Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce, the Associated General Contractors, and Valley landowners.

"We want to alert the people who live along the river that the project is at a standstill and that we can have further erosion and siltation and possibly flooding," Hughett said.

Property owners along the Carmel River lost approximately 20 acres in the rain-induced flooding of the river, valued at about $1 million. Robert Zobel, one of those property owners, lost more than an acre of land valued at $115,000 in the flooding.

Over-pumping of the wells in Carmel Valley by California-American Water Co. was cited by some property owners as the cause of much of the erosion. They maintained that the over-pumping killed vegetation along the river bank which normally would have served as a barrier to erosion.

That dispute between Cal-Am and Valley property owners is now in court.

JACKSON SAID the Operating Engineers Union is opposed to allowing the Army to perform the work on the Carmel River because it is work which belongs in the private sector, and it is a step "leading toward socialism."

Maj. Frank Lake, public information officer at Fort Ord, said the Army is prohibited from engaging in any sort of outside enterprise in competition with private industry.

"If it's something that competes with commercial enterprise, we can't do it," Major

NOTICE TO OUR READERS

All of the newsprint mills in western Canada are on strike, depriving publishers in the western United States of 80% of their newsprint supply. Since the labor unrest was anticipated, many larger newspaper publishers were able to build their inventories. We were able to secure a small extra supply.

Crown Zellerbach is our main supplier of newsprint. Since Zellerbach has one mill in Oregon, we will be receiving some newsprint — 40% of our monthly allocation.

Because of the uncertainty of the supply outlook, we are curtailing some of the regular columns in the Pine Cone/Outlook. We regret this inconvenience to our readers, but must take this precautionary step to avoid more serious problems later, if the strike should persist.

Thanks for your cooperation.

Jackson also objected to a Carmel River Watch debris-clearing project on the river in December, 1980. In that effort, the California Conservation Corps removed large eucalyptus trees which had been felled by erosion. The trees diverted river flow against the banks and posed a threat to downstream bridges.

"Voluntary community efforts of the type spearheaded by CREW are a principal means of coping with river erosion problems until a comprehensive watershed management plan is drafted and implemented," Hughett remarked. "The planned project was a one-time effort to cope with an emergency situation pending development of a longer-term solution. Any long-term solution undoubtedly will employ union workers."

THE FLOOD CONTROL district recently received a comprehensive flood hazard study of the Carmel River which proposed six alternatives, from channelization of the river to the installation of six-foot-high concrete culverts.

The $18,000 flood hazard study by George Nolte and Associates recommends formation of a special assessment district to tax property owners along the river for any flood control measures. No action on the alternatives identified in the report is anticipated before December, according to flood control officials.

The Monterey County Board of Supervisors has enacted a floodplain ordinance which prohibits most construction within 200 feet of the river bank. That ordinance would complement whatever flood hazard projects are undertaken through an assessment district.

And an Assembly bill which would have provided up to $50,000 in state matching funds for a comprehensive study of the Carmel River as a protected waterway died in the last days of the legislative session. The measure would have funded detailed study of river bank erosion and riverbed maintenance, among other things.

The flood control district received $500,000 in federal disaster relief in 1977 following the Marble Cone fire to clear the riverbed of trees, brush and sediment washed down the Carmel River. Unless another disaster is declared, no such funds would be available to the district this year.

Eight areas between Carmel Valley Village and Rancho San Carlos have been identified by the flood control district as places where the riverbed is in critical condition. With the assistance of a professional hydrologist, the district developed a plan to remove the sand bars, realign the main river channel to the center of the riverbed, and re-establish river banks in those eight critical areas.

Sand which would be removed from the Carmel River would be stockpiled and used for sandbags in the event of flooding. Approximately 25 days of work by bulldozers would be required to clear both the Carmel and Salinas rivers of accumulated silt, according to the flood control district estimate.

"The amount of work to be done surpasses the capabilities of private funding by many of the affected landowners," Hughett said. "The generous help from the Army at Fort Ord offers the only possibility for sufficient volunteer manpower and equipment to do the job."

Bob Binder, assistant engineer with the Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, said removal of the silt and debris from the riverbed would be "desirable" before the rainy season begins.

"I'm not willing to predict exactly what could happen if it isn't cleared, but it could be serious," Binder said. "Eventually, they will have to form some kind of financing entity to take care of these things that have to be done on the river. Our district doesn't have the money."

CUTTING a new path, the Carmel River sliced through Robert Zobel's property and destroyed land valued at more than $100,000 during the 1979-1980 rains. Effects on the river bank from erosion (left) as well as silt deposits (right) are clearly visible in this photograph taken from the Schulte Road bridge in August, 1980.

New plan would send water from CV to Seaside

DIRECTORS OF THE Monterey Peninsula Water Management District will review a proposal to recharge the Seaside aquifer with water from the Carmel River when they meet at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Aug. 10 in Monterey City Council chambers.

The draft of a study of alternatives for recharge of the Seaside aquifer prepared by the Monterey consulting firm, WWD Corp., for a $9,600 fee, proposes pumping water from the Carmel River aquifer, transporting it through the Canada de la Segunda pipeline, and then forcing it underground in Seaside.

Such a scheme could increase the overall yield of the existing California-American Water Co. system by as much as 1,600 acre feet per year, said water district manager Bruce Buel.

Other alternatives for recharge of the Seaside aquifer involve the use of effluent from the Monterey sewage treatment plant to be pumped underground, to form a fresh water barrier to block further penetration of sea water into the Seaside aquifer.

The plan is based on a finding that sea water intrusion into the Seaside aquifer is already extensive, plus a determination that large amounts of potable water are lost from the Carmel River during wet years, Buel said.

Creation of a fresh water barrier by pumping would halt sea water intrusion into the Seaside aquifer and permit withdrawal of potable water below the existing water table, the study points out. The combined effect of this would be to increase storage capacity of the aquifer.

Although the study proposes several alternatives for use of Monterey sewage effluent to recharge the Seaside aquifer, Buel said he will not recommend to the board of directors that the possibility be explored further because of the potential for contamination of the aquifer.

WATER COULD BE drawn from Carmel Valley wells or from a dam on the Upper Carmel River during wet years to increase the storage of the Seaside aquifer, which recharges more slowly than the valley aquifer through a process of percolation, Buel explained.

Fresh water could be pumped from the Carmel River aquifer, through the pipeline, and directly into the Seaside aquifer by reversing the flow of pumps which now operate in Seaside. Theoretically, the plan would increase storage of the Seaside aquifer during wet years to be drawn upon during dry years.

"Recharge of the Carmel Valley aquifer is certainly more important than any induced recharge at Seaside and no water should be used for the latter purpose at the expense of the former," the study cautions.

The report recommends that none of the excess water be diverted from the Carmel Valley aquifer unless:

- The Carmel River is flowing at Schulte Bridge, or
- Well data indicate that the Carmel Valley aquifer is "brim full."

The design delivery capability of the Canada de la Segunda pipeline is 6,950 acre feet per year, and in all months of the year except July there will be an excess delivery capability of the pipeline which could be used to transport water to Seaside for recharge, the study found.

"About half the time, some 2,300 acre feet per year will be available through the pipeline in excess of system demand, and can be used for recharging without having an adverse effect upon the supply. The excess represents direct diversion from the Carmel River in months of low demand and should not be compared to the Public Utility Commission's limit of 9,000 acre feet per year from the river."

ONE POTENTIAL ramification of recharge of the Seaside aquifer could be a re-evaluation of the growth limit proposed in the Carmel Valley Master Plan, based on increased supplies of water. But the water management district could designate the additional supplies as emergency set-aside to be used only in drought years, and not compute it as part of the annual system yield, Buel said.

All fresh water produced in the California-American Water Co. Monterey Peninsula district comes from two primary sources: the Carmel Valley aquifer, which is charged by the Carmel River, and the Seaside aquifer, which is charged by ground percolation.

"The Seaside aquifer is much broader and more consolidated than previously thought," Buel said. "It has at least 9,000 acre feet of unused storage potential."

Estimates of the initial capital costs of such a recharge system range from $70,000 to $1.5 million, depending on the size of the system and the projected yield. Estimated annual operating costs range from $136,000 to $800,000.

'The study proposes pumping water from the Carmel River aquifer, transporting it through the Canada de la Segunda pipeline, and then forcing it underground in Seaside.'

"We caution the district that our analyses of several of the proposed schemes have been based on very crude estimates," the study found. "Under no condition should the district proceed to actual construction prior to adequate testing."

IN OTHER BUSINESS, directors will discuss a report from consultant Don Kelley on alternatives to a fish hatchery to preserve fish species when the district builds a new dam on the Upper Carmel River. The report will point out that fish can be provided spawning areas on the river without a hatchery.

"Basically, we can solve the problem without a hatchery if we flush enough water downstream from the dam to allow the fish to get up and then down the river," Buel said. "The consultant feels hatcheries are a bum deal and that fish survive better when they can spawn in a river."

If directors approve further study of the concept, the staff will determine exactly how much water must be released from the dam to provide special areas on the river for fish rearing, Buel said.

Carmel to consider revision of transient rental ordinance

In the wake of a Superior Court decision, the Carmel City Council will consider enacting a revision of its transient rental ordinance at its Monday, Aug. 10 meeting at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

City Administrator Doug Peterson said the revised version will eliminate those items described by Monterey Superior Court Judge Nat Agliano as excessively restrictive.

Agliano granted a preliminary injunction July 27 in a lawsuit against the city by 39 persons who own residential property in Carmel. The judge stated that the ordinance, as written, prohibits an owner from allowing friends and family members use of the home for periods of less than 30 days. Agliano said there was "no rational reason" why persons should "physically occupy the premises for more than 30 days."

The ordinance, banning residential rentals for less than 30 days, was enacted to preserve the residential character of the village.

ALSO ON THE COUNCIL agenda is a report by the City Administrator — and appropriate department heads — on the damage to the beach during the July 4 celebration. Peterson said the report will look into ways to play down the annual event, which drew and estimated 15,000 persons.

- Other agenda items include a council tour at 4 p.m. to look at hotel parking places, including four to five white zones allowed for hotel loading and unloading.

- The council also will take up a proposal to revise signing behind Carmel Plaza related to tour buses.

- Possible need for relocation of a street at Mission and First, which allegedly angles onto private property, also will be taken up by the Council.

- Discussion of lighting at the Doud Arcade on San Carlos near Ocean again will be discussed. Doud was asked, and agreed, to tone down lighting in one of the front stores. The City Administrator said some persons feel the lighting is still too bright.

Crowded agenda for Aug. 3 meeting means long Aug. 10 council meeting

BECAUSE TWO public hearings absorbed so much time at the City Council meeting Monday night, consideration of many items was delayed until the second meeting of the month, Monday, Aug. 10.

Among the matters that were held over:

Consideration of a resolution on the Peripheral Canal; award of bids for a new engine for a fire truck; consideration of a report on water consumption in the city; consideration of revision to the zoning ordinance; and consideration of advertising the City Council agenda.

The Council will also review a program to control litter and to clean sidewalks in the downtown commercial district.

Passed on second reading at last Monday's meeting were an ordinance regulating permits to drive taxicabs; an ordinance regulating installation and operation of intrusion alarms for commercial and residential districts; and an amendment to the garbage ordinance requiring that containers in the residential area be out of the public way, and be kept in metal cans in the business district.

The final item approved by the council was a vote to keep the Canada de la Segunda Road project alive in the environmental impact report for the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

DO YOU REALLY OWN LAND?

Do you really own the land you live on? Yes, but not unconditionally. There's no question that you, your family, and heirs have strong historic rights to your own land. You can build on it, dig in it, keep others away from it, sell it, give it away, or borrow on it.

But your rights do not override certain public rights. A utility company may buy rights-of-way for power lines. The telephone company may have the right to a five-foot easement for poles along your backlot line.

Similar easements are purchased or granted for local electric power lines, underground sewer piping, natural gas lines, and water supply piping.

You should know about all easements, rights and claims made on your land while you are living on it. This is the reason for a title search prior to purchase. When it's completed, you'll know if your title to the property is, or is not, free and clear of all "encumbrances" and, if not, what they are.

*Of shop owners
past and present*

By FLORENCE MASON

YOU NEVER KNOW where you will find present or former Carmelites!

On a brief vacation last week I stopped in at a shop in Point Arena, about 40 miles south of Mendocino. Being an inveterate garage sale shopper, I was attracted to a sign which said, "Vera and Don's Shop... new and used tools, guns, clocks, antiques and miscellaneous."

Inside was a most pleasant lady, Vera Resco. Without many preliminaries, she found out that I had come from Carmel and I learned that she and Don, her husband, were former residents of Carmel Valley. They owned Colonial Silver, a shop on Lighthouse in Monterey.

Mrs. Resco said they had come to Point Arena for the better climate (debatable, I thought, looking out at the fog) and because there are fewer people. That, for sure. The Rescos live on a farm a few miles from Point Arena, far enough inland to claim a sunnier climate.

She was interested in hearing all the news about Carmel. In particular, "What happened to Parsons' jewelry store?" I said I would find out, and did — my trail taking me all the way to Wendy Ryan at the Seven Seas gift and card shop on Dolores.

Parsons, an antique shop on Lincoln, was started about 50 years ago by Vivian Parsons and her daughter, Mary Louise Parsons Davis, as a summer activity. Later it moved to the Pine Inn and jewelry was featured. The final move was to Sixth Street, where Flaherty's is now. Along the way, Wick Parsons Sr. joined his wife and daughter; after his death, Wick Parsons Jr. took over and Mary Louise Davis's daughter, Wendy Ryan, joined them. About five years ago, when Flaherty's took over the space, Seven Seas' owners Bruce and Olive Grimes were delighted to have Wendy come to work with them.

And so, having answered the Rescos in Point Arena, we come full circle!

By the way, Mary Louise Davis is one of those "retired" Carmelites who keeps her hand in business — in this case, appraising antiques.

IF YOU WENT even farther away — to Japan or Taiwan or Canada or Texas — you might not expect to find people asking about Carmel. But that is just what they might be doing, thanks to promotions being worked out by the Carmel Business Association.

According to executive secretary Lee Chamberlin, information about Carmel has already been featured at Hudson's Bay Company stores in Canada and in a chain of department stores headquartered in Dallas. The Canadian exhibit even included slides of our area, in addition to the more usual brochures, maps and the CBA's Guide to Carmel-By-The-Sea.

An intensification of the promotional campaign led to discussions with two Japanese and Taiwanese department store chains about conducting in-store promotions next year. California will be featured with Carmel one of the highlights.

OUR RECENT NOTE about business counselor Terry Bourne apparently caused some readers to wonder if Doran and Associates had moved out of Carmel. We hasten to state that the well-known business services firm is "still here and in full force," according to Tricia Doran. The move we referred to was simply to new quarters — on Lincoln, between Seventh and Eighth.

THE RECENT ROYAL wedding in England was of special interest to Carmel resident Anne Patrick and her business partner Robert Reinkens, owners of Flowers Limited in Pebble Beach.

Ms. Patrick lived and worked in London for many years. As an employee of Constance Spry, a large florist company, she taught flower arranging and trained students from all over the world to be florists. She was also involved in producing floral arrangements for parties in major London hotels and for royal weddings, the most recent being Princess Anne's.

With this background, it was inevitable that she missed being part of the Prince Charles-Lady Diana festivities. However, the next best thing was to decorate Flowers Limited for the occasion. A red, white and blue floral arrangement on the door was only the beginning. Inside were Union Jacks, other flags and tri-color ribbons as well as more flowery arrangements. Ms. Patrick said she was amazed and delighted by the response from customers.

She lives in Carmel and finds that developing her young business (which is opposite The Lodge, in the old post office building) is almost a 24-hour job. She misses cricket, but does watch golf.

TWO OTHER businesses are expanding.

An electrolysis clinic on Mission between Fourth and Fifth has become The Total Look of Spangenberg. Owner Kathleen Spangenberg said that "the total image of a person" is her real interest. That is why she is adding all the services of cosmetology to the electrolysis treatment in which she has been engaged in California since 1974, and in Carmel for more than three years.

This means "everything to do with hair, skin and nails." The versatile Ms. Spangenberg will be doing all the work herself. She said that it is new for her to emphasize the creative part of the work she is qualified to do.

If that isn't enough activity, she lists a variety of other interests, all sounding energetic: dancing, singing, bicycling and skiing (both water and snow) are among them.

NAUTILUS, WHICH opened recently in the refurbished Craft Studio Arcade on San Carlos, is adding a line of antique guns to their men's specialty gifts. Owner William Howard told us that the guns are from the collection of a friend of co-owner Greg Schafer. All the guns were manufactured before 1896; some date back as far as 1700. Included are such unusual items as flintlocks, derringers and "cap and ball" guns. Appearing before the Business Review and Code License Board, Schafer was quick to say that while it might be possible to fire some of them, "loads" are not available. The weapons were cleared for sale solely as antiques.

'TIS SAID IT'S a buyers' market these days. In real estate, that is. At any rate, one realtor, Dick Rowe of Hambrook-Rudoni, offered an enticement for those attending his Carmel "open house" recently. Wine and cheese!

You might assume, as I did, that this was something new. But no, Dick told us, he has been doing it at all his open houses for about four years. And yes, it probably helps! This particular house, advertised on Thursday, sold on Sunday, and Rowe's sales record has been consistently good.

Rowe came into real estate when he "retired." What had he done before? Something very different: he was chief microbiologist at Fort Ord!

***

"COMPUTERS CAN DO almost anything for you — except clean the house. They can't do that!" David Kempton, salesman at the Computer Place, added a "not yet" to that statement.

The Computer Place, on Carmel Rancho Lane for nearly two years now, recently installed a large number of Apple computer units at Hartnell College. These individual units are all tied together as part of a teaching lab.

According to Kempton, most of the firm's sales are to businesses or institutions, but an increasing number are to individuals for home use. With all the recent talk about Apple as a phenomenon of growth on the U.S. business scene, we had to find out what kinds of local people are looking into the computer world for themselves. Kempton said they sell to every kind of person.

"You can find a reason for a home computer for almost everyone, if you look. People don't always realize how much computers can do for them."

Computer Place, which is owned by Carmel resident David Stihler, is also one of the largest sellers of Hewlett-Packard products on the coast. With the high local interest in real estate investments, there is a fine market for the company's calculators, Kempton said.

According to Carmel's Doug Beauchamp, time management consultant and instructor, subjects will include "Procrastination" (Aug. 4), "Management by Crisis" (Sept. 1), "Trivia, Routine and Interruptions" (Oct. 6), "Are You Managing or Doing?" (Nov. 3) and "Meetings! Meetings! Meetings!" (Dec. 1).

Reservations are necessary and the seating capacity is limited. The classes will be held at the Monterey College of Law from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. For more information phone 373-0143.

CARMEL MAY SEEM to be a quiet town (where the streets are rolled up after 11 p.m.?) but appearances can be deceiving. Sometimes the later hours — or the very early ones — can be just the time for those tasks that can't be done in normal business hours. Just ask Olive and Bruce Grimes, owners of Seven Seas card and gift shop on Dolores.

Sometimes Mrs. Grimes can be found dressing the windows of the shop after closing time, while her husband does the paperwork. Such was the case the night the Bach festival opened. While she was putting out a special assortment of music-oriented letterpaper, gifts, cards and art objects, a young couple came by and watched avidly. After a while — when it was well past midnight — the young couple rapped on the window and indicated they would like to buy something. Mrs. Grimes consulted with Mr. Grimes and they agreed to open the shop.

The couple explained that they had to leave very early the next morning and until now had not seen any suitable gifts to mark their attendance at the opening concert. The Grimes explained in turn that they were not usually open at such hours and that they did not have any money on hand for change. No problem — a charge card took care of that and a pair of music teachers from Colusa departed happily with $16 worth of paper, cards and other mementos.

Joshua Kent Fowler

Most children have a dog or kitten for a pet but the critters welcoming Joshua Kent Fowler home to the Lazy Jake ranch in Salinas include one horse, two steer, a heifer, and geese as well as a few cats and dogs.

Josh is the son of Dr. Kent and Cindy Fowler of Salinas. He was born at Community Hospital on July 8 at 9:56 a.m. He also had a bit of trouble deciding when he wanted to make his grand entrance so he arrived a month late and weighed in at 9 pounds, 13 1/2 ounces. He was 21 and three-quarter-inches long and his mother says he has lots of dark brown hair and eyes that look as if they're going to be brown.

Josh's father is a large-animal veterinarian and his mother is a school teacher in Salinas.

His paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Lyman C. Fowler of Salinas; his maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Mac Mills, also of Salinas.

"He really did make a grand entrance," said Mrs. Fowler, explaining that near the end of her labor she went into pre-eclampsia and an emergency cesarean had to be performed. "We feel very fortunate to have him."

Although Josh's father missed out on being present for his birth he was allowed to hold him the moment the doctor finished his work — and he held and rocked young Mr. Fowler in the nursery's pine rocking chair for the next three hours.

Dad is now an expert in the diaper department and enjoys spending time with his son while the new mom has "break time."

"He has us completely spoiled," said Mrs. Fowler. "He sleeps five or more hours at a time. He's also a good eater and at his two-week check-up weighed 10 pounds, 10 ounces."

The Fowlers say they hope to have at least one more child — and the good doc says that his feelings won't be the least bit hurt if Josh decides to be a veterinarian when he grows up.

Lester treats guests to salmon feast

By TERRI LEE ROBBE

Lester Henderson is a master when it comes to entertaining, and the "salmon feast" he gave for about 15 guests last Thursday evening at his Carmel Woods home was a gourmet delight.

Guests of honor at the get-together were Lester's houseguests, Joe and Dottie Donovan and Katie Donovan (same last name but no relation) of North Abington, Mass. — which just happens to be Lester's old hometown.

For many years Dottie managed Lester's North Abington art gallery. She was also in charge of retouching all the negatives and photographs.

Katie is Lester's private secretary at the gallery, so they are all long-time friends.

Joe recently retired as superintendent of water of the towns of Abington and Rockland, so it was a perfect time to forget about work and enjoy a first visit to Carmel. Naturally they've been given the "grand tour" and are planning side trips to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Carmel artist Carol Chapman was there and had a delightful time chatting with guests about her meeting with Dr. Wayne W. Dyer, author of the bestseller, Your Erroneous Zones. And not only did they become good friends — she painted his portrait!

Another famous artist at the party was Marlinde Von Ruhs-Hamdani who arrived with her husband, Gerard, who practiced medicine in his native France before marrying Marlinde and moving to Carmel. The couple, looking like newlyweds, will return to France for a two-month stay before settling down in Carmel permanently.

Bill Clapper, who has a fresh fish retail shop in Carmel Valley, was chatting about "the-catch-of-the-day" while his wife Mary, a volunteer at Community Hospital, enjoyed socializing.

Fran Frazer and her husband, Dick, a teacher at MPC, were also there; as was Shirley Koploy, who co-wrote the exquisite book, The Sublime Heritage of Martha Mood with Lester. The two are now working on Volume II.

After the guests had devoured the sumptuous salmon feast with all the trimmings, prepared by professional chef Augie Birner, Lester called for a round of toasts for Les and Betty Welge, who were celebrating their 31st wedding anniversary — and for a toast to Mary Clapper, who was celebrating her birthday the following day.

On August 7 Lester will take a break from his work and head to Victoria, British Columbia for a visit with former Pebble Beach residents, John and Shirley Goldring.

Then on Sept. 8 he and his "Flying Art Show" will take to the skies in his Cessna for stops in Nevada, Colorado, Kansas, Texas, Alabama and Tennessee — just to name a few! One highlight of the trip will be a stop to check on his Cessna 208 Turbo, which is in the final stages of construction — with numerous little extras which, said Lester, "will make flying even more of a pleasure than it already is."

A delightful dinner party!

SOUTHERN PICNIC TO BENEFIT THE S.P.C.A.

It's "little critter" time again!

That also means party time, and the annual event this year will be a southern-style picnic at the barn belonging to Dick and Sheila Collins of Pebble Beach on Sunday, August 9.

The affair is sponsored by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (S.P.C.A.) Auxiliary and it sounds like a real winner.

Southern hospitality will be right in style along with southern ham, fried chicken and an ample supply of mint juleps. All this and a Dixieland band, performing for footstamping merriment.

And to get the straight scoop on just how a southern picnic should be run, Connie Palms, who is a friend of all the auxiliary board members, called Barbara Smith (in Virginia at the time) to run a check list. But then, with Mary Francis Singleton giving advice and Becky Flavin putting together the menu — what could be more perfect!

Although these annual parties are always fabulous fun, the really nice part is that all proceeds will go to benefit the S.P.C.A.

CAPTAIN BILL WELCOMES NEW NIECE

Captain Bill Hill of the Carmel Fire Department is a proud uncle — thanks to little Miss Kate Romaine Keith-Fitzgerald who was born in Swarthmore, Penn. on June 8.

Kate's parents are Dr. Roy Fitzgerald and Jennie Keith of Swarthmore. The couple were married in Carmel last year (July 19) at Hill's Corner, home of Jennie's mother, Romaine Hill. It was also Romaine's birthday so it was a double-celebration day.

Jennie, who was born and raised here and graduated from Carmel High School, is now a professor of anthropology at Swarthmore College. Her husband is a psychiatrist, and was one of the leaders of the recent ascent of Mt. Rainier by a group of disabled people.

Little Kate was only 10 days old when her dad went on the climb, but grandma Romaine, who spent two months visiting with her new granddaughter, was there to help Kate's mom tend to the many chores of having a baby in the house.

Kate was also welcomed by her sister, Leslie, and her brothers, Aaron and Robert.

We welcome you also Kate! And we're glad to have Romaine home again.

NEW DIRECTOR — AND BARGAIN HUNTER'S HEAVEN SALE

The new director of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, Thomas J. Logan, has arrived and says that he "has quickly become immersed in the business of being director and am now managing the day-to-day operation of the museum and starting to plan for its future."

One of the first priorities, he said, is to remodel and add to the building so that it can function more effectively. He said there will be an official announcement soon of a most generous grant from a local donor which will help the project immensely.

The association members are also working hard on the upcoming Bargain Hunter's Heaven Sale at the Monterey County Fairgrounds on Saturday, Sept. 12 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. A $1 donation will be requested.

A "Gathering-In Day" will be held at the fairgrounds on Sunday, August 30 from 1 to 4 p.m. and members are asked to bring their resalable treasures and enjoy the wine and cheese. Tax deduction forms will be available.

A DON'T—MISS RUMAGE SALE

Looking for those special treasures? Then don't forget to mark your calendar for the big annual patio rummage sale sponsored by the Women's Association of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula. The sale will be held on Carmel Valley Road at the Rancho Canada turn-off on Fri., Aug. 7 10-4 and Sat., Aug. 8 10-3. In addition to an excellent selection of clothing, bric-a-brac, books and household items, there will also be carpet remnants, floor tiles and paints for sale.

YACHT CLUBS JOIN FORCES FOR FUN AND RACING

Some people know how to have fun — and that's exactly what they did when the Stillwater Yacht Club and the Monterey Peninsula Yacht Club recently joined forces after the Konigshofer Shields Regatta and the four races of the Mercury fleet championship series, for a "Bring Your Own Everything" picnic and barbecue on the beach at Stillwater Cove.

The evening was warm, the moon bright and the water calm as about 150 club members and their friends joined in the outdoor fun.

(A partial list of Carmel Police activities)

Monday, July 27

12:27 a.m.: DRUNK PEDESTRIAN. Waitress at the Hog's Breath Inn reported a female patron disturbing other patrons. Woman brought to police station and transported home.

10:10 a.m.: Disturbance, LOUD PARTIES. On-going problem with neighbors at Camino Del Monte and San Carlos. Complaint over number of juveniles frequenting house and showing unruly behavior. Owner to be contacted.

11:14 a.m.: Accident. An 81-year-old Carmel MAN FELL FROM A BUS while getting out at Rio and Atherton. He was not injured, but was checked by the Carmel Fire Department and then transported home.

11:30 a.m.: Traffic hazard. CAR ROLLED AWAY from parking place on Mission and Fourth missing a telephone pole by six inches. Car blocked driveway and caused traffic hazard. Unable to find owner. Tow truck called.

1:24 p.m.: A VAN BACKED INTO A FLOWER POT on private property at Lopez and Fourth. The driver contacted the owner of the residence and said he would pay for the damage. However the man apparently left the area without paying for the broken pot, valued at $12.

11:00 p.m.: PROWLER reported in vicinity of San Carlos and Fifth. Caller said a man was in the yard. No merit. Police found a neighbor doing gardening.

Tuesday, July 28

1:44 a.m.: Disturbance: LOUD PARTY at Junipero and Seventh. Contacted and quieted. A second call reported at 2:33 a.m. Party ended by police.

8:49 a.m.: THEFT OF TWO LANTERNS reported by Michael's Leather, Mission and Sixth. The lanterns, valued at $50 each, apparently were pulled from their moorings during the night. The bushes also were vandalized and fence pickets on the fence in the walkway were broken.

A.M.: DISPUTE noted between a Riverside, Calif. man and the owner of a shop in Carmel Plaza involving the sale of porcelain bluejays and a consignment dispute over a stamp collection. Civil matter.

Wednesday, July 29

12:45 a.m.: Disturbance: BARKING DOGS. Location of San Antonio and Seventh. Owner said she will put dogs inside.

1:44 p.m.: Disturbance/dispute, at Francesca and Dolores. Police received report that an elderly WOMAN WAS SPRAYING WATER ON CONSTRUCTION WORKERS BUILDING A NEW HOUSE. The woman apparently claimed that she had been assaulted by construction crew members when they also sprayed water on her. According to police this action took place after the woman had first sprayed water. The woman said she intends to sue the contractor and have her physician handle the case for her. She claims he has treated her for prior injuries due to her falling on sawdust created by the new construction. When police attempted to make contact, the woman shouted, "You are all cowards. You are cowards" and began spraying them and the construction crew with the water hose over a six-foot fence that surrounds her property. The water struck one officer in the face and chest. Two officers retreated to reconsider the situation. Officers unable to enter woman's property as it is padlocked from inside. Woman later came to station to confer with police chief. She said she wished to buy a gun, but was advised to confer with her attorney first. Construction firm contacted about situation.

Thursday, July 30

9:02 a.m.: Disturbance, noise, Tenth and Mission. Couple filed a local complaint and forwarded a copy to the district attorney for evaluation regarding CONTINUOUS NOISE AND HARRASSMENT BY A YOUNG NEIGHBOR. The couple said they previously had complained at City Hall when a skate board ramp built at the residence created noise. The ramp was ordered dismantled. Since then, the couple claims loud music, live guitar playing and obscene gestures have plagued them from the youth.

9:25 a.m.: RESIDENCE BURGLARY reported at Eighth and Santa Fe. Taken were two statues valued at $1,200. One was a bronze figure worth $800, and another was a rose carving from Indonesia valued at $400. The owner, who is selling her home, said a number of people were in the house several days previously.

11:35 a.m.: Petty theft. Subjects from Burbank left the Horizon Inn at Junipero and Third, TAKING ALL THE BATHROOM LINEN. Four hand towels, four bath towels, four bath rags and one bath mat were found missing, valued for a total of $57.83.

2:20 p.m.: Malicious mischief, at Hatton and Mountain View. Pacific Telephone Company reported while one of its units was in the area with a ladder truck parked, a BB PELLET WAS FIRED AT THE WINDSHIELD breaking it. Shots may have come from the canyon area.

2:39 p.m.: Property damage reported when a ROCK FELL OFF A CITY OF CARMEL VEHICLE AND HIT A CAR at Junipero and Fifth, causing minor damage. The truck was turning the corner when the rock caused a one-inch scratch to the left front fender of the car of a Washington, D.C. man.

8:34 p.m.: Disturbance, LOUD MUSIC, at Lobos and Third. Police found no merit to call.

8:40 p.m.: Traffic. RECKLESS DRIVING reported by a Carmel man seeing a yellow 911 Porsche driving at a high rate of speed on San Antonio.

8:55 p.m.: Disturbance. LOUD MUSIC reportedly coming from a vehicle at Scenic and 13th. Driver contacted, music turned down.

9:30 p.m.: Carmel Drug Store requests police pick up FOUND PROPERTY. In a black plastic bag were one pair of men's swimming trunks, an empty Lloyd's Bank travellers check holder, blank post cards, two maps and one British passport.

Friday, July 31

1:10 p.m.: THREAT (verbal) at the Broked Egg Restaurant. Report of an employee in restaurant making threats at manager. Subject apparently angry that he was dismissed by employer.

2:18 p.m.: MALICIOUS MISCHIEF. Sundial Lodge. Operators found in room 114 a lamp broken, numerous cigarette burns on a new rug, spare ribs with red sauce on blankets and water spots on the rug. Two male occupants had been in the room. A family member in Newton, Mass. was contacted. Man's mother said she would pay the bill.

Sunday, Aug. 2

8:09 a.m.: MALICIOUS MISCHIEF at Guadalupe and First. Woman had her vehicle rolled out into the street during the night. Close patrol requested.

10:04 a.m.: Crocker Bank reports a KITTEN STUCK IN AN AIR CONDITIONER. Patrol unit assigned. Kitten rescued and brought to station. Cat found to have internal injuries. SPCA called.

1:45 p.m.: Assault and interfering with a peace officer. A 30-year-old San Francisco MAN WAS ARRESTED AFTER HE BECAME IRATE AT RECEIVING TWO PARKING TICKETS IN ONE DAY. When the parking officer attempted to put a ticket on the windshield of his Mercedes, the man complained, "You're not going to give me another ticket." He attempted to leave without receiving the traffic ticket. The parking officer called for assistance and maneuvered her vehicle to keep the man from leaving. Apparently the man had received a ticket earlier for parking in a cross walk. At one point the man grabbed the officer's arm and held it up in the air. The officer said the man had parked 32 minutes over the allotted time. The man said he did grab the officer, "but not that hard."

2:10 p.m.: Assistance call. Wife at a restaurant reported she is UNABLE TO LOCATE HER HUSBAND. He was last seen at the restaurant. Police short time later received a call from the man. Unit took him to restaurant to meet his wife.

3:45 p.m.: OVERDUE SUBJECTS. Wives reported their husbands were six and a half hours overdue from a boating trip at the extreme end of Carmel beach enroute to Stillwater Cove. Subjects located and reunited with their wives.

3:55 p.m.: ASSISTANCE. Elderly female unable to find her way home. Woman escorted to a relative.

Arson suspected in brush fire

Arson is the suspected cause of a brush fire that blackened 15 acres on the east side of Los Laureles Grade Monday, Aug. 3.

The fire was reported shortly before noon to the California Division of Forestry. It was located about one-half mile up from Carmel Valley Road just off Laureles Grade Road.

Five fire engines from the California Division of Forestry, including two from the Carmel station, and one each from the Tularcitos and Arroyo Seco stations, responded to the fire call. About 25 CDF personnel fought the fire, assisted by an equal number of wards from the California Youth Authority's Ben Lomond Camp in Santa Cruz County, said Ray Wallace of the CDF Tularcitos station.

Two CDF air tankers from Hollister flew over the fire and dropped borate.

CDF personnel were also assisted by the Carmel Valley Fire Department, which supplied 21 firefighters — three paid personnel and 18 volunteers — to bring the blaze under control. The Carmel Valley Fire Department sent two brush rigs (trucks) and two fire engines to the scene.

The fire was brought under control by about 3 p.m., just before winds started to fan the area.

"The fire was in a bad area, and we wanted to jump on it right away," Wallace said. "The nearest structure was a house not more than a tenth of a mile away. Arson is strongly suspected, and the fire is still under investigation."

The fire was confined mostly to grassy areas of the hill, but had started to burn into brush adjacent to developed areas by the time it was extinguished, Wallace said.

Property owners' board meets Aug. 12

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association board of directors will start the process for annexation of Carmel Valley to the Monterey Peninsula Garbage and Refuse Disposal District when it meets at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 12 at the Mid-Valley Fire Station.

The CVPOA will endorse a resolution which Fifth District Monterey County Supervisor William Peters is to present calling for the annexation. The move would bring waste disposal rates in the unincorporated Valley into line with what other district residents pay.

Carmel Valley residents now pay about 50 percent more for use of the dump than do district residents.

CVPOA president Jack Sassard said an informal agreement has been worked out with the Carmel Valley Disposal Co., the CVPOA, and Supervisor Peters to press for the annexation. If the resolution is approved by supervisors, the plan would then go to the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO).

LAFCO, the agency which oversees any change in governmental structure in Monterey County, must then study and make a recommendation on the proposal. If LAFCO approves of the annexation, supervisors would hold public hearings before they approve the action.

In other business, the CVPOA directors will hear a membership report that there are now 1,621 persons in the CVPOA. They will also view a sketch of the proposed intersection of Robinson Canyon Road and Carmel Valley Road, which is crucial to the development of the Carmel Valley Ranch.

MORATORIUM!

By BABS COROVESIS

A FREEZE ON changes in the business district — pending revision of the General Plan — was adopted by the Carmel City Council Monday, Aug. 3 after two hours of public discussion.

The vote was 4 to 1, with Mayor Barney Laiolo opposed. The measure received little opposition.

City Attorney George Brehmer spent some time explaining the proposal and the legal precedent for the city enacting the urgency ordinance. The measure, which goes into effect immediately, will last for up to one year, although city officials anticipate the General Plan revision will be complete within eight months.

The ordinance prohibits subdivision of businesses, creation of new building sites, conversion of apartments and zoning changes. It also limits subsidiary businesses not otherwise authorized in the zoning district to a 25 percent limit or less of cash gross sales. Food service, art galleries and gift shops are prohibited from expanding in size or number unless a conditional use permit is obtained from the city.

The ordinance also requires that no significant buildings may be altered without permission of the City Council.

The ordinance provided exemption for 18 use permits or variances for building or remodeling projects which were already applied for and had city approval, by July 30.

Those projects exempt include Swedberg (Guillanos), Jerry Winters, Cafe au Lait, D. Rocco (Carmel Family Dental Practice), Jody LeTowt (Le Bistro), Rodolfo Reate (Fresh Fish), Bea Enea, Village Theater, Sweeney project, Thomas Handley, Melvin Kline, Allen Funch, H & M Associates (Mallery), Pecora Moore (Mission apartment condos), and Jim Burgess.

The General Plan will be a comprehensive guide for the development of the city for the next 20 years. It covers land use, circulation, housing, conservation, open space, noise, safety, scenic highways and other areas. The current General Plan was adopted in 1973.

UNDER THE WORDING of the ordinance, the city considers that not maintaining the status quo during this time "would be detrimental to the public health, safety and welfare."

Exact prohibitions include:

- No tentative maps shall be approved for major or minor subdivision of land including creation of or conversion to condominiums, stock cooperatives or other similar uses.
- No new building sites shall be created by the moving of lot lines.
- No apartments shall be converted to any other use.

- No transient rental structure shall be constructed.

- No applications for zoning changes shall be accepted; however, the City Council shall not be prohibited from enacting zoning ordinances.

- Establishment of, or conversion to, a business where a subsidiary business not otherwise authorized in the zoning district produces more than 25 percent of the cash gross sales or occupies more than 25 percent of the retail sales space shall not be allowed.

- Food service establishments shall not be allowed to expand either in size or in number unless a conditional use permit is obtained.

- Art stores or art galleries shall not be allowed to expand either in size or number unless a conditional use permit is obtained.

- Gift shops shall not be allowed to expand either in size or number unless a conditional use permit is obtained.

- Significant buildings (listed in 1979) shall not be altered without prior permission from the City Council.

- No conditional use permits or variances shall be issued unless the Board of Adjustments makes the required findings.

WHEN CONSIDERING the above findings, the Board of Adjustments (Planning Commission), in order to allow a variance or change, must consider whether the proposal is beneficial or detrimental to the residential district; encourages or discourages or results in the loss or gain of residentially-oriented businesses; encourages or discourages high quality specialty shops; is beneficial or detrimental to the mix of businesses; will provide goods or services which are likely to be used by permanent residents; will significantly intensify parking problems, housing demand, demand for water, increase noise or traffic circulation problems.

Violation of the interim ordinance is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $500 and/or six months in jail.

A NUMBER OF residents and other interested persons spoke at the public hearing before the measure passed. Former Mayor Gunnar Norberg told the council the moratorium they were considering had been needed for the past 23 years to restore Carmel to its position of making business and commerce subordinate to residential interest.

"Part of this ordinance begins to do that by cutting down on gift shops, art galleries and restaurants. For heaven's sake, this is a town of 5,000 people. If you tried to seat the population of Carmel at all the restaurants, you could seat everyone twice," Norberg said.

He added that an earlier survey showed Carmel has 96 gift shops, 81 art galleries, 72 restaurants and 51 motels.

Norberg said when he was in office he proposed no restaurant, gift shop or art gallery be within 500 feet of another one, but the measure failed. "We are getting ourselves ruined. At some point we really have to mean we are a residential community."

"Progress — it's a dubious term, and if you apply it to this extraordinary place and let it be taken over by entrepreneurs from all over the place, it will be terrible. Meanwhile, the city is going to the dogs," Norberg added.

He called himself "a 74-year-old housewife for Carmel — trying to save it. It is an unusual place, a treasure." He said it is time someone else took up the banner, "take over the load, carry the freight to restore Carmel to its residential intent."

Connie Dudley, a real estate broker, disagreed. She said the reason stores like Monte Mart and Safeway and others were built outside Carmel is that "we couldn't afford to shop here" due to high costs. "Thus we found tourist-oriented businesses coming in," she said.

Mrs. Dudley opposed the ordinance because she said it was being swept in too fast and would create a lot of dangers.

"Whose discretion is it on which art gallery or which gift shop is quality? We need safeguards so everybody knows this ordinance is not unfair," she added.

Mrs. Dudley also said Carmel was not simply a residential community. "Everybody here has to make a living in order to be here. It's a two-edged sword — there are two different worlds, residential and commercial. That's the way it is," Mrs. Dudley noted.

Bob Stephenson, chairman of the Carmel Planning Commission and a 35-year-resident of Carmel, told the council that "the ordinance is beneficial to the city and I hope you'll have the good intelligence to pass it." Alan Williams also gave his support to the ordinance, adding, "I've been screaming General Plan for some time."

One woman asked Brehmer whether the interim ordinance could invoke charges of restraint of trade. The city attorney said "zoning itself is a legalized restraint of trade. That limits uses to designated locations. What we are doing is cutting uses back a little bit."

Another woman claimed that in the recent past the city has been issuing building permits and business licenses "promiscuously."

"It's like locking the barn door after the horse is gone. It should have been done years ago," she said, with audience applause.

TECHNICAL POINTS of the ordinance were challenged by Dan Hudson who said he could not see how it could be enacted on the basis that Carmel's health and welfare were harmed without it.

He also wanted to know the definition of "significantly." What may be significant to one may not be significant to another," Hudson said. He also expressed concern that the General Plan revision could take several years, rather than months, to complete.

Matthew Little told the council that "if the General Plan will correct the problems of the last 15 years, then it only makes sense to protect the General Plan with an interim ordinance."

Mayor Laiolo, who voted against the measure, criticized the ordinance as discriminatory. He said it should cover residential as well as commercial districts. "We need an ordinance for the whole city or else it won't fly," the mayor said.

He later said he could not support the ordinance in its existing form. "At a time when we're trying to get control back to local government, this could kill it," Laiolo said.

At one point the council considered delaying action for a week. But Brehmer said they had bypassed usual procedures on grounds of it being an urgency and needed to act immediately so as not to undermine the urgency.

Councilwoman Helen Arnold said she was concerned about Carmel's "economic health and aesthetics." She also expressed concern over increases in day visitors who "only buy a T-shirt and ice cream cone." She added that Ocean Avenue on a Saturday looks like "a honky-tonk carnival atmosphere."

Speaking in favor of the ordinance, she added, "if a few horses are left in the barn I see no reason to say, 'come on, take the rest of them.'"

With that, the measure passed on a motion by Councilman Mike Brown and seconded by Mrs. Arnold.

IT WAS A LONG NIGHT, FOLKS!

BECAUSE TWO public hearings absorbed so much time at the City Council meeting Monday night, consideration of many items was delayed until the second meeting of the month, Monday, Aug. 10.

Among the matters that were held over: Consideration of a resolution on the Peripheral Canal; award of bids for a new engine for a fire truck; consideration of a report on water consumption in the city; consideration of revision to the zoning ordinance; and consideration of advertising the City Council agenda.

The Council will also review a program to control litter and to clean sidewalks in the downtown commercial district.

Passed on second reading at last Monday's meeting were an ordinance regulating permits to drive taxicabs; an ordinance regulating installation and operation of intrusion alarms for commercial and residential districts; and an amendment to the garbage ordinance requiring that containers in the residential area be out of the public way, and be kept in metal cans in the business district.

The final item approved by the council was a vote to keep the Canada de la Segunda Road project alive in the environmental impact report for the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE NO. 81-23

AN INTERIM ORDINANCE ESTABLISHING PROHIBITIONS AND REGULATIONS OF LAND USES IN THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA PENDING THE REVISION OF THE GENERAL PLAN OF THE CITY AND THE ADOPTION OF ZONING ORDINANCES IMPLEMENTING THE REVISED GENERAL PLAN.

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, State of California, has adopted a comprehensive zoning ordinance which has been amended from time to time and which is codified as Part X of the Municipal Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea; and

WHEREAS, the City Council has authorized entering into a contract with a consultant for the revision of the General Plan for the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea which revision it is believed will result in certain changes in the zoning regulations of the City; and

WHEREAS, allowing uses presently authorized by Part X of the Municipal Code which may be or are likely to be prohibited by new zoning ordinances implementing the Revised General Plan would be detrimental to the public health, safety and welfare; and

WHEREAS, Government Code Section 65858 provides for the enactment of an interim zoning ordinance for the purpose of maintaining the status quo while studying the proposed zoning changes where not doing so would be detrimental to the public health, safety and welfare;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section One. Prohibition; Regulation. During the time this ordinance is in force, the following prohibitions or regulations shall apply where applicable to all zoning districts:

a. No tentative maps shall be approved for major or minor subdivision of land including creation of or conversion to condominiums, stock cooperatives or other similar uses;

b. No new building sites shall be created by the moving of lot lines;

c. No apartments shall be converted to any other use;

d. No transient rental structure shall be constructed;

e. No applications for zoning changes shall be accepted; however, the City Council shall not be prohibited from enacting zoning ordinances;

f. Establishment of or conversion to a business where a subsidiary business not otherwise authorized in the zoning district produces more than 25% of the cash gross sales or occupies more than 25% of the retail sales space shall not be allowed;

g. Food service establishments shall not be allowed to expand either in size or number unless a conditional use permit is obtained as described herein;

h. Art stores or art galleries shall not be allowed to expand either in size or number unless a conditional use permit is obtained as described herein;

i. Gift shops shall not be allowed to expand either in size or number unless a conditional use permit is obtained as described herein;

j. Significant buildings listed in the proposed significant building list dated February 13, 1979 and prepared by City staff from A Significant Building Survey for the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea dated January, 1979 by the Monterey Architecture Resource Inventory shall not be altered without prior permission from the City Council pursuant to Section Two of this Ordinance.

k. No conditional use permits or variances shall be issued unless the Board of Adjustments makes the findings required to be made by Part X of the Municipal Code and the findings set forth in Section Two below.

Section Two. Permits; Appeals. Where it is stated in Section One above that a use, variance or change may be allowed subject to obtaining permission from the Board of Adjustments or the City Council, the following findings shall be made in addition to the findings required, where applicable, to be made by Part X of the Municipal Code:

a. That the objectives of the revision of the General Plan have been considered as they relate to the use, variance or change and the proposed location for the use, variance or change for which the permission is sought and that the granting of the use permit, variance or change is consistent with the provisions which are reasonably expected to be included in the revised General Plan and the zoning ordinances implementing it; or

b. That the use, variance or change is trivial and could not significantly conflict with the revised General Plan and the zoning ordinances implementing it.

When making the above findings, the Board of Adjustments shall consider whether or not the use, variance or change:

- a. Is beneficial or detrimental to the residential district;
- b. Encourages or discourages or results in the loss or gain of residentially oriented businesses;
- c. Encourages or discourages high quality specialty shops;
- d. Is beneficial or detrimental to the mix of businesses;
- e. Will provide goods or services which are likely to be used by permanent residents;
- f. Will significantly intensify parking problems;
- g. Will significantly intensify housing demands;
- h. Will significantly intensify demand for water;
- i. Will significantly increase noise in the community;
- j. Will significantly increase traffic circulation problems.

k. The goals and objectives of the revision of the General Plan as described in the proposal for the revision.

l. Will significantly increase air pollution in the community.

m. Other reasonable factors.

When making findings about alteration of significant buildings, the City Council shall consider, in addition to the above factors,

- a. Safety.
- b. Age of the building.
- c. Historical significance.
- d. Feasible alternatives to the proposed changes.
- e. Significance of building design.
- f. Location.

The procedures established in this section are in addition to those already existing.

Appeal from a decision of the Board of Adjustments shall be in accordance with Article 3, Division 4 of Part X of the Municipal Code.

Section Three. Exemptions. This ordinance shall not apply to time share projects which are prohibited by Ordinance No. 80-8 adopted June 9, 1980 as extended by Ordinance No. 80-19 and Ordinance No. 81-13. This ordinance shall not apply to the prohibition of the establishment of small spaces for retail sale of merchandise through subletting, licensing, granting concessions or otherwise which uses are presently prohibited by Ordinance No. 81-7 adopted April 6, 1981. Although this Ordinance does not establish the prohibitions set out in Ordinance No. 80-8 as extended, and Ordinance No. 81-7, the study to be conducted by the consultants revising the General Plan includes the study of time share projects and the establishment of small spaces for retail sale of merchandise, and, therefore, the City Council finds that it is further in the interest of the public health, safety and welfare for the prohibitions set forth in Ordinance No. 80-8 as extended, and Ordinance No. 81-7 to be in effect during the revision of the General Plan and the development of the Ordinances implementing it.

The projects listed in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and incorporated by reference are exempt from the application of this Ordinance.

Section Four. Violations. Any person, firm or corporation, whether as principal or agent, employee or otherwise violating or causing or permitting the violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Such persons, firm or corporation shall be deemed to be guilty of a separate offense for each day during any portion of which any violation of this Ordinance is committed, continued, or permitted by such person, firm or corporation and shall be punishable as herein provided. Any building or structure erected, constructed, or used contrary to the provisions of this Ordinance, and any land, building or premises established, conducted, used or maintained contrary to the provisions of this Ordinance shall be and the same is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney of said city shall upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action or proceedings for the abatement and removal and injunction thereof in the manner provided by law. The remedies provided for herein shall be cumulative and not exclusive.

Section Five. Validity. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid, such decision shall not effect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The City Council hereby declares that it would have passed this Ordinance and each section, subsection, sentence, clause and phrase hereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared invalid.

Section Six. Processing of Applications. Processing of applications is not prohibited by this Ordinance unless it is expressly stated herein. However, processing of applications shall vest no rights and shall not be used as an argument for entitlement for the permit for which the application is filed. Such processing of application is allowed in order to minimize delay should the permit be issuable under the revised General Plan and its implementing Ordinances. Each applicant whose application is being processed shall be informed that he is proceeding at his own risk and that the permit may be denied based on the revised General Plan and its implementing Ordinances.

Section Seven. Effect of Violations. Should any person, firm or corporation violate the terms of this ordinance and any action is authorized by the City Council or the City Attorney or is in fact filed for said violations, no other action shall be taken on any application filed by or on behalf of said person, firm or corporation until the litigation has been resolved.

Section Eight. Urgency. This Ordinance is hereby declared to be an urgency measure and necessary for the immediate preservation and enjoyment of public safety, health and welfare. The facts constituting the urgency are as follows: The General Plan of the City is being revised and in the course of that revision numerous zoning studies will be carried out the results of which are likely to bring about changes in the zoning ordinances which changes would not allow uses which are allowed under the Ordinances as they presently exist. It is believed that there are persons ready to make applications for permits which would allow projects and uses contrary to those which will probably be allowed under the revised General Plan and to allow such uses or projects would destroy the effect and purpose of the contemplated changes if this ordinance is not enacted immediately.

Section Nine. Effective Date. This Ordinance shall take effect immediately upon its adoption following public hearing and will remain in effect for a period of one year.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 3rd day of August, 1981 on severed Roll Call votes. The ordinance was first voted upon without the exemptions listed in Exhibit "A" and passed and adopted by the following Roll Call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Arnold, Brown, Brunn, Lloyd.

NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Laiolo

ABSENT: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None

The exemptions listed in Exhibit "A" were then voted upon and made a part of the Ordinance by the following Roll Call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Arnold, Brown, Lloyd, Laiolo

NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None

Absent: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Brunn

Signed:

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 81-18

AN ORDINANCE REGULATING THE INSTALLATION AND OPERATION OF INTRUSION ALARMS FOR COMMERCIAL AND RESIDENTIAL DISTRICTS.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN as follows:

Section 1. The Municipal Code of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is amended by adding Division 20 to Part IV to read as follows:
Division 20 — Regulation of Installation and Operation of Intrusion Alarms

699.90 Definitions. A "security alarm device" is any system which, when activated, sounds an audible siren, horn, bell, or other sound producing device from the interior or exterior of any privately owned structure within the corporate boundaries of the City or any device which gives an electronic signal to a telephone answering service or any attachment to a telephone which automatically reproduces recorded messages to alert public safety services or any other person or entity to an emergency. The term "security alarm device" as used in this Division does not include the installation and operation of any approved system connected by lease line directly to the silent alarm monitoring equipment located at the Police Department of the city.

699.91 Installation Requirements; Sign. Security alarm devices shall meet all Uniform Building Code and Uniform Fire Code requirements and be Underwriter Listed, whether installed by a private owner or a licensed alarm service. An identification sign shall be affixed on or near the main entrance to a structure in which a security alarm device is installed. The sign shall state the name, address and telephone number of the company, person or agency to be contacted in the event of alarm activation. The sign shall comply with the requirements for alarm device signs found in Section 1303.6 of this Code.

699.92 Notification of Installation. The owner, representative of the owner, or person installing a security alarm device shall, prior to installation of a security alarm device, notify the Police Department in writing of: (1) the full name, address and telephone number of the owner of the structure, alarmed; (2) the full name, address and telephone number of the person or entity causing the security alarm device to be installed; (3) the exact location of the premises alarmed; (4) telephone number and at least one alternative telephone number to be called in the event of an emergency along with the names or name of responsible persons with authority to act on behalf of the alarm owner; (5) the name, address and telephone number of the alarm company; and (6) the type of alarm, for example, burglar, hold up, audible, telephone answering service, etc.

699.93 Audible Alarm Time Limits; Reset. Any audible exterior alarm shall automatically reset to the silent mode after being activated for a period not to exceed five (5) minutes. The Chief of Police, at his sole discretion, may issue a written permit authorizing an audible exterior alarm to remain in the active mode for a specified period of time longer than five minutes upon a showing of circumstances unique to the alarmed structure which make it reasonable to allow a longer period of time. When considering a request for a permit to allow a longer period of time, the Chief of Police shall take into consideration the distance from other structures, the density of the vegetation around the structure, the loudness of the alarm, the number of inhabited structures in the neighborhood and any other factors. An audible exterior alarm which remains on the active mode for longer than five minutes or longer than the time specified in a permit issued by the Chief of Police, is declared to be a public nuisance which may be summarily abated after a hearing by the Business License and Code Review Board and the expense of the abatement shall become a lien against the real property on which the alarm is maintained and a personal obligation against the owner of the real property and against the owner of the security alarm device.

699.94 False Alarm Charges. Should the Police Department respond to a security alarm device which goes off or otherwise signals an emergency due to lack of care in the operation of such device by the owner or representative of the owner, a false alarm charge shall be payable by the owner of the security alarm device to the City, the amount of which false alarm charge shall be set by resolution of the City Council. Alarms activated by mechanical malfunction, line equipment problems or other causes not the fault of the owner shall not be subject to false alarm charges.

Section 2. Violation of this ordinance shall be an infraction.

Section 3. Should any part of this ordinance, even as small as a word, be found to be invalid, the remainder of the ordinance shall remain valid.

Section 4. This ordinance shall become effective thirty (30) days after its final passage and adoption.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 81-22

AN INTERIM ZONING ORDINANCE EXTENDING FOR EIGHT MONTHS ORDINANCE NO. 81-7 PROHIBITING ESTABLISHMENT OF SMALL SPACES FOR RETAIL SALE OF MERCHANDISE THROUGH SUBLETTING, LICENSING, GRANTING CONCESSIONS OR OTHERWISE PENDING A STUDY OF A PROPOSED ZONING ORDINANCE.

WHEREAS, Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 81-7 was adopted by the City Council on April 6, 1981; and

WHEREAS, Government Code Section 65858 authorizes extending Ordinance No. 81-7 for eight months following the expiration of the original four month period provided for in Ordinance No. 81-7 and after public hearing; and

WHEREAS, the reasons for adopting Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 81-7 still exist and more time is needed to study the problems discussed therein and to adopt permanent regulations; and

WHEREAS, a duly noticed public hearing on the question of extending Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 81-7 for eight months was held on August 3, 1981;

NOW THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDAIN as follows:

Section One. Interim Zoning Ordinance No. 81-7 entitled "An Urgency Ordinance Prohibiting Establishment of Small Spaces for Retail Sale of Merchandise Through Subletting, Licensing, Granting Concessions or Otherwise Pending a Study of a Proposed Change in Zoning Ordinances" adopted April 6, 1981 is extended for eight months to midnight, April 5, 1982.

Section Two. The interim ordinance as extended prohibits the establishment of merchandise markets, the use of any space for retail purposes which space is smaller than 250 square feet, and the use of any space for retail purposes which space is enclosed by walls, ceiling and doors which can be securely locked, which prohibitions are more extensively set out in Section One of Ordinance 81-7. Said prohibitions are subject to certain exemptions set forth in Section Three of Ordinance No. 81-7.

Section Three. The adoption of this Ordinance is required for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety in that the City proposes to consider enacting changes in the present retail zoning regulations as they relate to the size of space used for retail purposes. These changes, it is deemed, are needed urgently. City Council, therefore, adopts this Ordinance to avoid the frustration of the purpose of the proposed changes during the interim period of study, and to prevent unfair economic advantage to any persons able to make developments in these areas at this time.

Section Four. Effective Date. As an urgency ordinance, this ordinance shall become effective immediately and shall terminate on midnight on April 5, 1982, unless extended as provided by law.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, this 3rd day of August, 1981, by the following roll call vote:

Moratorium stays in effect:

Planners want more time to study time-sharing

THE CARMEL Planning Commission wants time out to study time-sharing.

After a two-hour discussion between commissioners and the public last Thursday, a proposed ordinance governing time-sharing projects was referred to the land use committee for in-depth study.

"I feel like I'm walking into a room where I don't know where the light switch is and I'm going to run smack-dab into something and fall on my face," commented commission member Sandy Swain.

"I don't feel comfortable with this because I don't know anything about it."

Planning Director Robert Griggs told the commission, "it is imperative that some type of ordinance be given to the council even if it has to be amended. You're leaving yourself wide open if you don't."

A moratorium, in effect until May of 1982, prohibits time-sharing uses in Carmel while the city studies the issue and adopts some kind of ordinance. City Atty. George Brehmer advised the commission that time-sharing could be prohibited altogether, but such an action would have to be based on findings of fact and could not be "capricious."

The Planning Commission and City Council held a joint meeting Aug. 27, 1980 to discuss time-sharing, and a public hearing was held Sept. 24, 1980. The Planning Commission held another hearing on the issue April 22, 1981.

amended to increase the number of allowable units."

Griggs said the areas proposed for time-sharing projects are those where transient uses are already permitted. Time-sharing would enable persons to purchase the units for definite periods of time or to exchange them for other time-sharing units elsewhere.

"This is an extension of condominium ownership with ownership being broken up into time frames of one or more weeks," Griggs explained. "Its general effect on the city relates to the maintenance of properties, collection of transient tax, management of the property by responsible personnel who are houses on the site, and protection of existing motels and hotels which accommodate overnight guests who desire shorter term transient units."

ONE PROBLEM AREA is the determination of transient taxes, Griggs said. "The conversion of a motel to a timeshare project should not be a detriment to the city's tax base. A conversion of this nature should not pay less transient tax than the previous year and should show an increase due to a higher occupancy rate and inflation."

Jerry Schumacher, president of World Resorts, a time-sharing firm on the Monterey Peninsula, told the Planning Commission that time-sharing would be "a very favorable thing" to allow in Carmel. Schumacher noted that he had been "instrumental" in getting Pacific Grove to enact a time-sharing ordinance recently.

"This would be very helpful for Carmel because people would own the unit for a week or two weeks or a month and you'd be cutting down on transients," Schumacher said. "You have a pride of ownership situation which benefits the city, and the taxes benefit the city."

was enacted by the City Council March 18. Schumacher's World Resorts has been given approval to operate a time-sharing project at the Pine Acres Lodge at 1150 Jewell Ave.

ANNE WOOLWORTH of Carmel — a former member of the Planning Commission — urged the commission to make an exhaustive study of time-sharing.

"I don't see anything in the ordinance that prohibits two-night occupancy," she said. "Do we know it's legal to collect a transient tax on time shares? You should remember that Carmel is not a resort project; it's a residential neighborhood."

"The transient occupancy ordinance we (planning commissioners) and the council worked out is adequate. It seems that we regard our ordinance as rather weak if it has to be bolstered up with some strange new use. Time-sharing projects are a great vehicle for speculation and might cut down on apartments. We must take care of the older citizens in low and moderate housing."

Tom May of Carmel said the city should look at the fact that time-sharing projects are securities offerings, as well as a type of land use.

"The greatest concern to me is the stability of the neighborhoods," May said. "I think that is getting lost. A time share is clearly a security offering. It is an investment contract and is subject to securities regulations. I feel there has got to be a very clear definition in the ordinance of what the policy is regarding time-sharing."

"We haven't had the convergence of information necessary to get a full understanding of what the impact is. I suggest that on an interim basis you look upon any ordinance as something to be revised later. We are dealing with something that is highly sophisticated. You should possibly bring in an outside expert to advise the city attorney."

Commissioner Jim Wright noted that most of the material he had seen on time-sharing was prepared "toward the view of the prospective time share owner. We really haven't had too much comment in regard to the impact on the community. In the Pacific Grove ordinance there has to be some showing that the property will be properly maintained and managed."

ALAN WILLIAMS of Carmel said the positive aspects of time-sharing projects shouldn't be overlooked.

"Time-sharing can be beneficial if it's properly controlled, but it has to be explored," Williams told the commission. We need more information. Will it be hotel conversions? Will it be new construction? Will it replace businesses?

"There is some feeling that if people owned a piece of Carmel for a while, they'd be better tourists. Maybe if we allow time-sharing in those areas where it is economically feasible, it will help us meet requirements in the Local Coastal Program for more low and moderate income."

"If we carefully control this thing it could be an asset to the city."

Commissioner Art Mertens wondered whether time-sharing could be banned completely in Carmel.

"That is a decision which you, as planning commissioners, have to make," replied City Atty. George Brehmer. "Cities have a very broad power to decide what land uses to allow. Carmel has values that have been built up over many years through a lot of effort."

"The decision you have to make is one of studying what is the time-sharing animal? In how many shapes does it come? Is there a time-sharing shape that would be beneficial?"

"If you decide that all time-sharing shapes are detrimental, then you can prohibit it. It probably still would face a court test, but if the ordinance was reasonably based, the city would prevail."

Commissioner Gene Cava asked whether the preamble to the city's zoning ordinance enacted in 1929, which states that Carmel is primarily a residential community, could serve as a basis for prohibiting time-sharing projects.

Brehmer said his research led him to the conclusion that time-sharing would not be an allowed use in the residential districts, but would be allowable in commercial areas, unless the Planning Commission made findings that the use would not be compatible with any existing land use.

"Many cities have really agonized over this," remarked Commissioner Swain. "The fear is not knowing where the pitfalls are. You don't know what kind of Pandora's box you're opening."

The Planning Commission expects to hold another study session on the issue in October, after the land use committee has completed its research.

LAFCO to weigh merger of Carmel, PB districts

THE LOCAL Agency Formation Committee (LAFCO) is scheduled to consider the proposed consolidation of the Carmel and Pebble Beach sanitary districts Tuesday, Sept. 29.

At the same meeting, the panel, which oversees any changes in governmental organization in Monterey County, will also consider a petition from Pebble Beach residents to merge fire and sanitary services into a single unit of government.

The two proposals are mutually exclusive, said Mike Johnson, LAFCO director. That means LAFCO may recommend one, the other or neither to the Board of Supervisors, but not both.

"Both applications are in conflict with each other," Johnson said. "That means we will have to process them concurrently. I propose to analyze them side-by-side. The two are mutually inconsistent."

LAFCO received the petition bearing about 400 names of Pebble Beach residents who favor consolidation of fire and sanitary services last week. Directors of the Pebble Beach Sanitary District have already made it clear they do not favor consolidation with the Carmel Sanitary District.

But the Carmel Sanitary District staff estimates $110,000 per year would be cut from operating expenses of both districts by consolidation, and directors have petitioned LAFCO for merger of the two feuding districts, as recommended by a recent Grand Jury report.

Before LAFCO considers the two proposals, Johnson will prepare an exhaustive analysis of both measures to compare benefits of each. The value of the plans will be the degree to which they simplify and economize governmental operations.

"There are strong points for each proposal," Johnson said. "LAFCO's objective is to insure that governmental structure is as smooth and efficient as possible. Both proposals may accomplish some of that."

"At this point, I don't know which will accomplish the most in the long run. It may turn out that I won't favor either, although I doubt it."

ONE OF THE reasons for the proposed consolidation of the Carmel and Pebble Beach sanitary districts is the protracted disharmony and litigation between the two. A merger, according to the Grand Jury report, "would eliminate a significant amount of political squabbling."

Perhaps the biggest bone of contention between the two districts has been the $13.7 million water reclamation project undertaken by the Carmel Sanitary District, which envisions a sewage pipeline running from Carmel through Pebble Beach to Pacific Grove.

While the Carmel Sanitary District board of directors sought to implement the Grand Jury's recommendation, a movement was underway for consolidation of County Service Area 42 for fire services with the Pebble Beach Sanitary District.

The Pebble Beach fire and sanitary districts share a common building in Pebble Beach, but the Pebble Beach Sanitary District does not operate its own sewage collection, treatment and disposal system. It simply shares one-third of the capacity of the Carmel plant.

Both the Carmel and Pebble Beach districts have separate, elected, five-member boards of directors.

Johnson said he will base his analysis of the two proposed mergers on two considerations:

- A policy determination of which would best promote simplicity in government.

- A judgment about which plan would meet long-term objectives of providing services to each community of interest.

"In terms of economics, I want to look at each to see which does the most for the most people," Johnson said. "I want to see which offers the best opportunity for representation for future services."

LAFCO will hold public hearings on both plans Sept. 29 and make a recommendation to the Board of Supervisors. Supervisors must then schedule public hearings on the recommended plan within 60 days after the LAFCO recommendation.

Supervisors will then vote whether to approve the consolidation and place the measure on the ballot for confirmation by a simple majority of voters. Earliest possible date for a vote would be June, 1982, Johnson said.

Merger of the Pebble Beach fire and sanitary districts would create a community service district. Although no such district now exists in Monterey County, it would be compatible with the type of community, Johnson said.

"It's a very appropriate type of government in a community that's not ready for incorporation and which maybe never will be," he added.

Panetta explains vote

Dear Editor:

The President's tax proposal has now passed the Congress. This completes the major steps involved in implementing his economic program for the nation. I think all Americans join me in hoping that this program will indeed be as successful as promised in reducing interest rates and inflation, fighting unemployment, and restoring economic productivity and prosperity.

It nevertheless remains a gamble, and the American people must be aware of the economic experiment this nation will test over the next three years. I have expressed my concerns and opposed many of the elements of this gamble.

It remains difficult to believe that a policy of significant increases in defense spending and huge tax cuts, even when combined with deep budget reductions, will result in a reduced deficit and a balanced budget. In any event, its success or failure will no longer be measured by the volume of political rhetoric but by how the average American family today is able to survive in our economy.

Unfortunately, the tax debate failed to focus on that issue. Instead of an effort to develop the best possible tax legislation for the country, for the economy, and for the taxpayers, the tax battle became an auction to determine who would win and who would lose.

The choice was between two bills which would produce enormous budget deficits, provide relatively little assistance to the average taxpayer, and add even more special breaks and loopholes to an overly burdensome and complex tax code.

Pork-barrel tax bills may win or lose short-term political contests, but they provide little long-range relief to taxpayers desperate for permanent tax reform and simplification. Therefore, I opposed both the Republic and Democratic approaches.

Having expressed these concerns and having opposed elements of this program, I felt the President had clearly won his battle on the tax bill and deserved strong bipartisan support on final passage. He is now fully accountable for his program. Let us hope and pray that it works.

Enslaved to auto?

Dear Editor:

Car-pooling, a suggested solution to our traffic problems in America, is not catching on quickly enough and is apparently not popular. If we want a truly great country which won't decline like the Roman Empire, I think we're going to have to end our romantic love affair with the automobile.

As I see it, our economy and western civilization are slowly but surely being destroyed by our over-dependence on and enslavement to the auto — a product, not of human genius and inventiveness, but only of the big corporations, mismanaged as they are by the fat cats at the top. One day the people of this nation will rise up, in a relatively non-violent fashion I hope, and cry: "Exploit the exploiters!"

India, China and most of Asia and the Third World get around pretty well on bicycles and tricycles, which are often fixed up into attractive and fancy carriages or rikshas with the driver in front pedalling.

They could fit small alcohol-driven motors of 1½ horsepower to make these superb inventions even better. Such engines would obtain 100 miles per gallon at least, and help on the hills.

Jesus Christ never owned a car, or even a motorbike. He walked most places, and sometimes 20 or 30 miles a day. And as we know, he didn't die of cancer, like so many of us do. He was never ill at all. He was murdered by a stupid world.

He would not have approved of Chrysler, and all these cars everywhere. Do we really want a third certainty in human life, making it "cars, death and taxes?"

A transplanted runner

Dear Editor:

I left the overcrowded, air polluted, fast-lane lifestyle of Southern California to enjoy the aesthetics of the Monterey Peninsula.

Upon my arrival in Carmel some months ago, a day didn't go by that I wasn't amazed by the rugged coastline my twice-a-day running took me through. I even wear my prescription sunglasses when I run now, as not to miss the scenery.

But the question remains: where are all the other runners in Carmel? I realize the population isn't as great as the urban sprawl of Orange County, but certainly this health environment would lure even the weekend athlete to see the sights. After placing an ad in a local paper for weekend Fun Runs, I was shocked to have only three inquiries, one of whom is brave enough to drag herself from a slumber to attack the elements. Perhaps the locals take for granted their scenic and peaceful surroundings!

A day didn't go by "down South" when — no matter what the time — scores of runners of all shapes, ages and sex could be seen inhaling the smog and dodging the traffic. Maybe it's the lifestyle in Southern California where everyone is so conscious of looking good.

I don't miss those 100 degree days with air that would choke the world's best conditioned runner, but I do miss the camaraderie of my fellow runners who would always pass you with an agonizing sigh, or lift a tired arm.

So I'll pound out my 50 miles a week. My companion is the constant amazement I enjoy that comes with the breathtaking scenery, and unpredictable weather.

I may be transplanted, but my keen interest in my recreation has been born on the Peninsula.

Horse malformation?

Dear Editor:

One wonders how many people at Friday night's horse show were bemused by the malformation of the Tennessee Walking Horses. To my sympathetic eye there appeared only one in that class whose gait was not grossly and viciously exaggerated.

The American Horse Protection Association (of which Lorne Greene is vice-chairman) states that in the "sore lick" the horse is forced to over-stride in the rear to relieve the severe pain inflicted on both forefeet.

And how does this happen? What at one time was a graceful natural gait has been cruelly exaggerated to a degree that should be unconscionable to all animal lovers. At the 13th Annual National Training Show in Decatur, Alabama, March 25-28, 1981, one U.S. Department of Agriculture veterinarian was present and inspected all exhibitors before they entered the ring.

However, many horses that passed inspection were sored by their trainers in the warm-up ring. Many horses that did not appear sore when they entered the ring showed definite signs of soreness by the end of the class. He estimated that less than 5 percent of the 900 horses entered were not sored and that to his knowledge, none of the unsored horses placed.

Another observer stated that during the final two days of that show, it was noted with certainty that the Horse Protection Act has no significant effect on the walking horse industry. Soring was abundantly evident at all levels of competition.

It was further stated that after seeing so many sored horses compete, the observer was shocked to find that no horses were reinspected after completion of their class, including the top three winners, as required by the Horse Protection Act. Inspecting the winners thoroughly (including removal of pads) would be a major deterrent to the rampant practice of soring. These recommendations, and others, have been made repeatedly to the United States Department of Agriculture officials.

What about this, horse lovers? There will be a horse show next year.

Report from Sacramento

By SAM FARR
Assemblyman, 28th A.D.

ABUSES OF the welfare system are neither new nor unique to our society. It is a tribute to our civilization that we make some organized, institutionalized effort to provide for those who are least able to provide for themselves.

But few of us are content to watch some persons continually abuse the system. One of the most glaring loopholes in the state's AFDC-U (Aid to Families with Dependent Children — Unemployed Parent) welfare program was one caused, perhaps unintentionally, by a recent court ruling. Briefly, the court stated that AFDC-U benefits must be paid to families with an unemployed mother on the same basis as families with an unemployed father.

Follow-up regulations allowed families which had previously qualified for AFDC-U on the basis of the father's unemployment to remain on aid when the father got a job by switching eligibility to the non-working mother.

This unintended loophole has become known as the "eligibility switch play" and costs taxpayers about $30 million per year.

I recently introduced a bill, AB 1679, to close off that loophole. Over 700 residents and elected officials from the Monterey Bay area, plus others throughout the state, wrote me in support of this cost-cutting reform measure. That outpouring enabled me to incorporate AB 1679 into an omnibus bill that was destined to be passed and signed into law.

Passage and enactment of this measure demonstrates that substantial sums of taxpayers' money can be saved by probing into department budgets and scrutinizing bureaucratic procedures. It is not usually necessary to "burn down the house" to get the "mouse" — even a big mouse. Costly loopholes can be plugged without denying services to those who deserve the benefits.

But passage of this legislation demonstrates something else even more fundamental to our political system. It demonstrates that when residents take the time to write a postcard or letter, things can get done. Heads can roll, loopholes can be plugged, and the incredibly complex machinery of government can get back to working for, not against, the honest citizen.

If you share my interest in welfare reform, I would appreciate hearing your ideas.

Marathon session Monday:

Council delays final action on purchase of lot

By BABS COROVESIS

IN A MARATHON five-hour session Monday night, the Carmel City Council delayed action on purchase of the lot adjacent to the library annex; enacted the controversial four-foot fence height limitation for fences on the public way; and approved the selection of Gordon Andrews of Santa Cruz as landscape architect for the Piccadilly Nursery site.

(Andrews immediately announced two community meetings at Sunset Center on Aug. 13 and Aug. 27 for public comment on what is wanted in the park, including ideas for what to do with the building wall adjacent to the property. Andrews anticipated having working drawings by mid-October.)

The council was expected to finalize purchase of the lot on Lincoln and Sixth, but some opposition arose over the comparisons used in the appraisal.

The owner's initial selling price was $200,000, subject to a city appraisal. Mayor Barney Laiolo said he "feels strongly we should have another appraisal" because the properties used for comparison were not comparable to the property in question. The city appraisal also was $200,000.

"I tend to agree," Councilman Howard Brunn said.

City Attorney George Brehmer reminded the Council that it is appropriate for the city to pay no more than "fair market value" for the land. "It is not unusual to obtain more than one appraisal."

Mayor Laiolo insisted on the second appraisal because he said it could mean a $50,000 to $75,000 difference.

Councilman Mike Brown agreed that "it is prudent for us to have another appraisal."

The Council voted unanimously for a second appraisal, if it can be done by the Aug. 10 council meeting. Action on the purchase will come up at that time. Otherwise, the matter will wait until September.

ON THE CONTROVERSIAL fence height issue, the Council found itself in open conflict with Bob Stephenson, chairman of the Planning Commission.

The Planning Commission had initially recommended that fence heights remain at six feet, but the Council still voted its preference for four feet. However, the Council now says the four foot height only applied to fence portions facing the public way, not side yards or back fencing.

City Administrator Doug Peterson said that a newly re-written ordinance sets the basic height at six feet except where a fence is parallel to a public street or in a front yard setback.

"It is not the intention to bother fence heights except in front," said Helen Arnold.

Stephenson noted that according to City Council minutes, the Council action forwarded to the commission simply said fence heights were not to exceed four feet that was the basis of its public hearing. In addition, Stephenson said no one favored lowering fence heights to four feet at the public hearing.

"There was no mention of only front fences. If that is what generated the heat, then it started from the City Council," Peterson said.

As for concerns that Carmel would become "a stockade town," Stephenson noted that fence heights at one time were eight feet, and only recently lowered to six feet.

Alan Williams of Carmel said he didn't consider fence heights a major problem but said "I think it is a right for people to have a fence they so desire." He added that the public voiced its preference at the Planning Commission public hearing.

Councilman Howard Brunn said there had been a lack of communication between the council and Planning Commission. "This is an idea whose time is not yet here. I won't vote for it because the City Council would be accused of shoving it down the public's throat," Brunn added.

An opposite position was taken by Councilman Mike Brown who said that after one six-foot fence is built, it just "creeps along the block."

Williams noted that the Planning Commission voted 7-0 against changing the height. "If all this repeats in the General Plan, we've got problems. Before we even get going on the General Plan, we've got to solve fence heights," Williams said.

Mayor Laiolo, opposing the change, said, "we're making this town ordinance crazy." Final vote was 3-2, with Brunn and Laiolo opposed.

The ordinance limits the height of fences to four feet above existing grade where a fence is parallel to a public street and within the required setback area adjacent to a public street.

With design review, fences may be as high as 10 feet, providing a building permit is obtained and certain requirements are met.

In other action, the Council:

- Turned down a Traffic Committee recommendation to close the walk-throughs on Ocean Avenue.

- Approved an ordinance amending the code to control maximum height of buildings on residential buildings at 24 feet from existing grade.

- Approved an eight-month extension of an interim moratorium which prohibits the establishment of merchandise markets.

Renaissance Wind Band to perform this Sunday

The Renaissance Wind Band will appear at the outdoor Forest Theater Sunday, Aug. 9 as part of the Summer Sunday Afternoon series of free concerts.

The group is part of the summer program presenting Macbeth at Monterey Peninsula College. The program is presented in cooperation with the Early Music Program at Stanford University.

This program is committed to recreating as precisely as possible the musical experience of earlier times. This involves performing on instruments which are exact reproductions of museum instruments, training musicians in the techniques of those instruments from early method books and researching the performance practices of the time. This is not for the sake of authenticity itself but in the conviction that through scrupulous attention to the aesthetic beliefs and techniques of the time, the most exciting musical experience can be created for modern audiences.

The program will include dance music, fantasias, and songs of the late 16th and early 17th centuries. The company will include singers and keyboard, string, and wind instruments — all reproductions of instruments of that earlier period.

In addition, three cast members from Macbeth will offer readings and scenes from Shakespeare's works. Actors Andrea Imperatrice, Randall Messick and Steven Martin have performed at the Edinburgh Theater Festival in Scotland and the California Shakespeare Festival in Visalia.

The program will start at 2 p.m. The Forest Theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel. For more information phone 624-3996.

Summer Horse Show gets underway

The 36th annual Pebble Beach Summer Horse Show continues this Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 6 to 9, at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center on Portola Road.

A new dimension at the horse show this year is the first jumping derby, scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 9.

Mrs. Pamela Carruthers, of Wiltshire, England, designed the spectacular course featuring banks, ditches and jumps. About 30 qualified riders will compete for the $5,000 prize money. The derby will begin at 8:00 a.m. in the jump ring area.

Manager of the derby will be internationally-known jumper rider Linda Allen of Hollister, a former member of the "All Girl" U.S. Equestrian Team. She says: "It will be a great proving ground for young grand prix horses and riders, as the course will utilize the natural footing and permanent jumps available on the West Coast only at Pebble Beach."

Gay Talmey Piper of Concord will judge more than two hundred entries in the show, some from as far away as Mexico and Canada, in green, junior, amateur, pony and working hunter divisions as well as the Jumping Derby on Sunday. The show is sanctioned by the AHSA.

There is no charge to view the show, but there is a $4 per car gate fee at the entrance to

Del Monte Forest.

For further information, phone Mrs. Abby Foss, Pebble Beach Equestrian Center, 624-2756.

GANDY DANCERS AND THE LIMITED, by R. Stephens Wright, is one of a collection of works by the author which will go on exhibit Saturday, Aug. 8 at the Zantman Galleries, Sixth Avenue and Mission, Carmel. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. There will be a reception for the artist Saturday at 5 p.m.

LINDA ALLEN OF HOLLISTER, former U.S. Equestrian Team member, will manage the Mark Cross Jumping Derby scheduled for Sunday, Aug. 9 at the conclusion of the Pebble Beach Summer Horse Show. Ms.

Allen is pictured at the 1981 Tucson World Cup Grand Prix riding her thoroughbred gelding, The Godfather. The derby will begin at 8 a.m. in the jump ring arena at the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center on Portola Road.

Wright's paintings are 'suffused with romantic charm'

The Zantman Galleries of Carmel present the works of R. Stephens Wright in an exhibition which begins Saturday, Aug. 8 at 5 p.m. There will be a reception for the artist.

The provocative, outspoken, and witty R. Stephens Wright believes that all painters should first learn to draw, should study the academic, traditional theories and methods of fine art and, above all, should work hard. He feels strongly that there is no such thing as a born artist and he disparages the idea of genius.

One might expect that R. Stephens Wright's "no-nonsense" approach to painting would produce unimaginative works with no emotional impact. Quite the reverse is true. His paintings are suffused with romantic charm and sing with vitality.

Though discipline and craftsmanship are words that Wright lives by, these qualities never subvert his sensitive capability to convey the atmosphere of time and place, whether it be the elegance of belle époque Paris with handsomely dressed ladies and gentlemen in horse-drawn carriages, the thundering excitement of an early 20th-century railroad marshalling yard with giant engines belching steam, the refined sensuality of a languid nude in a 1930's ambience or the freshness of a cool breeze on a contemporary sunny beach.

Born in 1903, Wright studied at Harvard in the twenties, majoring in mathematics until his senior year, when he switched to a fine art curriculum and then graduated cum laude. After a post-graduate year at the Chicago Art Institute, he went to Paris to study etching under Edouard Leon, president of the Salon des Beaux Arts. During a 10-year sojourn in France, Wright pursued a career in etching. His work was exhibited in many one-man shows and won many awards. He returned to the United States in 1934, and during 40 subsequent years, achieved his greatest professional success — this time in portrait painting.

This year marks Wright's third one-man show at Zantman with another outstanding group of recent paintings backed up by a substantial collection of his older etchings and drawings.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. For more information phone 624-8314.

Music Corner

A master cellist in concert and class

By LYN BRONSON

CONTINUING ITS excellent summer series of master classes, Hidden Valley played host last week to Lorne Munroe, principal cellist of the New York Philharmonic, and veteran of more than 80 solo appearances with the orchestra.

A former protege of famed cellist Gregor Piatigorsky at the Curtis Institute of Music, Mr. Munroe was principal cellist with the Philadelphia orchestra for thirteen seasons before coming to the New York Philharmonic.

With these impressive credentials expectations ran high for Mr. Munroe's July 26 recital, in which he was assisted by pianist Nohema Fernandez.

The program opened with the great Beethoven Sonata in A Major, Op. 69. As originally published, this work was entitled Sonata in A for Piano and Cello, rather than cello and piano. By no means does this imply that the cello is confined to an unimportant role, for both parts are more or less equal.

However, because Beethoven was in his prime such a superb pianist, the piano part tends to dominate and the cello must therefore be played in a bold, heroic manner. After all, some consider this the "Kreutzer" of the cello sonatas.

Miss Fernandez is a most excellent pianist and very sensitive musician, but she was at an enormous disadvantage, having met Mr. Munroe for the first time only the day before the recital. But there was another disadvantage. The evening was promoted as the "Lorne Munroe Cello Recital" with Miss Fernandez listed as accompanist.

The word "accompanist" is one no pianist feels comfortable with since it implies a kind of master/servant relationship. In fact, it often conjures up a vision of a timid person clutching music and walking three steps behind the soloist, who performs from memory in the spotlight at center stage. After the performance the star returns to accept the ovations. The accompanist remains in the wings.

Mr. Munroe in no way conforms to this stereotype. He is a warm, magnanimous artist, and more than ready to acknowledge the equal status of a pianist in a Beethoven sonata. But Miss Fernandez, while playing quite beautifully, tended to play too quietly, often with the soft pedal depressed, which made some important passages indistinct and lacking in the intensity and excitement of which they are capable.

Perhaps Miss Fernandez was taking her cue from the printed program, which presented Mr. Munroe as "master artist" and herself as "accompanist." Those of us who have heard her in recital with Ray Fabrizio and others know well the high order of performance she can deliver.

In any case, the Beethoven sonata in this recital did not ultimately emerge as one of the great works of the cello and piano literature, which it most certainly is.

THE C MAJOR suite for Unaccompanied Cello by J.S. Bach which followed made a splendid effect. Here all the resources of the cello under Mr. Munroe's firm hand came together with his knowledge and love of cello literature and succeeded in absorbing our attention from beginning to end.

The character of each dance movement was carefully delineated, and after the poignant seriousness of the Saraband, the lighter qualities of the Minuets I and II and the Gigue achieved an excellent cumulative effect.

After intermission Mr. Munroe presented "Pieces en Concert," a series of small pieces originally written by Francois Couperin for other instruments and heard here in an arrangement by Bazelaire. Although this work is considered stylistically old fashioned by younger cellists, Mr. Munroe played it with taste and elegance. A beautiful warm tone pervaded the Prelude, Plainte and Air, and the Tombe with its boisterous spirit was superbly effective.

The concluding piece on the program was Tchaikovsky's Variations on a Rococo Theme, Op. 33, a work originally written, like the Couperin, for cello and orchestra, and heard in this recital with the orchestra part reduced for piano.

And what a moving performance it turned out to be — a combination of rich, sonorous sound and beautiful lyrical shaping of phrases, concluding with dazzling virtuosity of a high order.

Mr. Munroe favored us with four encores: Faure's "Après un Reve," Weber's "Rondo" from the "Adagio and Rondo" arranged by Gregor Piatigorsky, a waltz by Tchaikovsky and finally "Bon Soir" by Debussy. "Après un Reve," one of Faure's most beautiful songs, has been transcribed successfully for many instruments, but never more successfully than for the cello. This performance by Mr. Munroe was so tender and passionate, you would have to have had a heart of stone not to be moved by it.

THE FOLLOWING DAY, July 27, saw the beginning of Mr. Munroe's master class at Hidden Valley which ran its course throughout the week with six participants and a handful of auditors.

Mr. Munroe proved to be a gracious and kindly teacher, often choosing his words most carefully to make sure that what he said would be clearly understood and at the same time not bruise any egos unnecessarily.

The first cellist heard in the Monday evening session was Maryann Cleary, 26, a graduate student working on her M.A. at Stanford and studying there with cellist Irene Sharp.

Miss Cleary happened to choose the same Sonata in A Major by Beethoven played by Mr. Munroe the previous evening. He commented that it is really a piano sonata with cello obbligato and that a cellist has to take pains to lay claim to being an equal partner. He advised Miss Cleary to take more time and enjoy the music. He was convinced that if the performer does not enjoy playing the work the audience will not enjoy listening to it.

Lawrence Granger, 29, from San Lorenzo, is working on his M.A. at Cal State Hayward and studying cello there with Allen Gove. He played the Beethoven Cello Sonata in G Minor. Mr. Granger played the slow introduction with great feeling, and the allegro which followed went like the wind and generated enormous tension. The concluding allegro was full of charm and wit. Mr. Munroe found much to praise in this performance.

Marta Jasberg, 25, of San Francisco, played the Bach Suite for Unaccompanied Cello in D Minor. Mr. Munroe worked with Marta on her intonation, especially on the width of half steps. He suggested that she always be aware which way the notes leaned and to place her pitch carefully.

On Tuesday evening after class Mr. Munroe held a rap session with the participants. Here was one of the most valuable sessions in the master class. We heard about orchestra auditions, how to get along with conductors, rehearsal etiquette and many other aspects of his thirty years of experience as a professional cellist.

The young musicians listened carefully and asked some good questions. There was a nice rapport between the two generations — a kind of mutual respect which can exist among people dedicated to a demanding profession.

More praise for The Whaling Station Inn

From "Where to Eat in America" by William Rice, Food Editor, Washington Post and Burton Wolf. Their current diners' guide:

WORTH IT

Whaling Station Inn, 763 Wave Street, one block above Cannery Row, Monterey (373-4248). In an area where dining establishments are a big deal both in price and size, here is a really well-run restaurant that lives up to its PR. The decor is of a whaling station at the end of the 19th century. Features steaks and fish broiled on a grill over oak wood and grape cuttings. The result is magnificent. Try salmon if it is in season. Reservations suggested. Open seven days a week. Complete dinners from $9.95.

Excerpt from New West Mag. 1/80 Restaurants, by Sandra Rosenzweig: ...Most of the entrees are cooked over an open-hearth grill, and they tend to be whatever is fresh and local.

On the creative, four-page wine list, devoted entirely to California wines, Monterey County wines take up two pages. Entrees run from $9.95 to $14.95.

Excerpt from Cuisine Mag. 1/80 by William Rice

The Whaling Station Inn, a full-scale restaurant on Wave Street, is just above John Steinbeck's old haunts.

From his Italian heritage, owner John Pisto brought a fondness for olive oil, garlic, fresh vegetables and a conviction that copious portions are what everyone expects.

Perhaps the prize exhibit in the kitchen he finished two years ago this month is a sizable pit grill fueled by oak wood. It is used for steak, of course, but even more often for fish. Local fish, some of which Pisto catches himself, gets top billing with the famed Monterey Bay prawns, a special treat when available during fall and winter months.

The restaurant succeeds, he feels, because "we don't try to overreach ourselves. We're very unpretentious. We don't try to hide the foods. They are what they are."

'Rashomon' opens tonight at Forest Theater

Rashomon — a Japanese tale about a crime of passion — is presented by the Forest Theater Guild Thursday through Sunday, Aug. 6 to 9.

The play begins at 8:30 p.m. at the outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

Rashomon, adapted by Fay and Michael Kanin, is based on a series of ancient Japanese stories written by Ryunosuke Akutagawa. The action revolves around a crime of passion told from four different perspectives. The setting is Kyoto, Japan, about a thousand years ago — at an edge of the Rashomon gate, at a police court, and in a nearby forest.

Akira Kurosawa, the internationally-famed film director, first introduced Rashomon to the west in his film version, starring actor Toshiro Mifune. The film won the academy award for best foreign film of 1951. In 1959 the stage play was first performed in New York, at the Music Box, presented by David Susskind and Hardy Smith and directed by Peter Glenville. The play is unique; while it is structurally a western play, the essence and beauty of Japanese dramatic artform and cultural expression remain intact.

Appearing in the Forest Theater Guild's production of Rashomon will be William Dodge as the priest, Michael Lojkovic as the woodcutter, Rex Maxfield as the wigmaker, Fred Curry as the deputy, Manny Dela Pena as the bandit, Danny George Gochner (who played the title role in Hamlet last year) as the husband, Lavonne Rae Andrews as the wife, Alicia O'Neill as the mother, Donna Mosley as the medium, and Gale Greenberg as Koken. Seiko and Akemi Ito will perform the opening meditation dance.

Although there is a blazing fire at the outdoor theater to ward off the evening chill, patrons are welcome to bring comforters, blankets and whatever else will help keep them snug while enjoying the performance.

The theater box office will be open at 7:30. Tickets are available at Abinante Music Store, Bartlett Music, Do Re Mi Music, Inc., and at Lily Walker Records and Music. Tickets are available for all performances. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for seniors, students and military personnel. Reservations are not necessary.

The play will run until Aug. 30. For more information phone 624-1531.

NOT THE PG&E MAN, but technical director Lance Jacobson is perched on a light tower to reset the lights for the new Forest Theater stage design.

Behind the scenes during 'production week'

By BARBARA SHULER

I once saw a painting — a man hanging by a rope over a precipice. On top were wild beasts ready to devour him if he went up. Down below lay a dragon waiting to catch him if he fell. And all the time a white rat, representing day, and a black rat, representing night, were gnawing away at the rope ... Rashomon.

IT IS THE BEGINNING of "production week" for the Forest Theater Guild production of Rashomon, a play by Fay and Michael Kanin based on a series of Japanese tales of ancient origin written down by Ryunosuke Akutagawa. The action involves a crime of passion as viewed from four different perspectives. Set in Kyoto, Japan about 1,000 years ago, the play unfolds at the edge of the great Rashomon Gate, at a police court, and in a nearby forest.

This week, directors, actors and technical crew all feel the tension, creativity, heightened emotions and the need for much, much work. Each experiences in his or her own way a sensation similar to the man in the painting dangling dangerously over the precipice. Now is the period when the separate parts of the production must come together to form a harmonious entity called Rashomon.

This is the most dynamic time in the preparation of any theatrical presentation. Let us share a few moments with the cast and crew ...

Director Ramie Wikdahl is giving a preliminary talk to the performers:

"As director, I am in a position now to make a marriage, a union, of the technical side of the show and the work you are doing as performers. This is a difficult task. So patience and compassion are required. Be attentive. Be courteous. I don't mind questions — but I don't want to be bombarded with a lot of unimportant things. If all goes smoothly, we will have several uninterrupted run-throughs of the show before opening night. Thank you for cooperating."

After Ramie finishes her short speech, some of the actors take advantage of a lull in the activity to find their bearings on the newly-constructed platforms of the set.

Danny Gochner, who plays the Samurai husband and Manny Dela Pena, the bandit, practice their fight scene, leaping from level to level, swords clashing.

Michael Lojkovic, the lowly woodcutter, goes over his scenes in the woods to the side of the stage. As he walks through the trees in costume, ax in hand, he looks like an eerie vision out of time.

SEIKO AND Akemi Ito select a part of the stage to run through the dance sequence which opens the show, while technical director Lance Jacobson helps carpenter John Russo tack down a corner of the set.

LaVonne Rae Andrews, who portrays the daughter in the play, emerges onto the stage in costume and rehearses movements in her Japanese kimono. Wearing a kimono is an unusual experience for an actress used to performing in western dress.

Downstairs in the dressing room, a few actors are still getting into costume. Seiko and Akemi, cultural advisors for Rashomon, have been helping with makeup, a specialized art in traditional Japanese theater.

"It takes a long time to put on makeup," Seiko explains. "Ramie is blending the theatrical traditions of the East and West in this show and has selected four characters to reflect the more stylized nature of Kabuki and Noh theater in Japan. These four wear the white makeup characteristic of Oriental theater."

MRS. TOSHI HADA, who has been dressing Seiko for eight years for her participation in the annual Obon Festival, is an expert in the complex art of dressing in the Japanese tradition. She knows all the different styles of Obi tying, for example. The obi is the part of the kimono which is the ultimate indicator of age, station in life, ceremonial function, and even geographical location. Mrs. Hada has offered her expertise to Rashomon.

Upstairs the stage is being prepared for the evening rehearsal. Stage manager, Nina Capriola, is sweeping the set. Two others roll out the rug used in the forest scene center stage. The night is becoming chilly, so a fire is lit in the stone fire pit. Lance, John, and technical assistant Charles Houghton adjust and focus the lights. Then, the director gives the call: "All right, let's get started!" The actors find their places and the action begins.

The evening turns out to be a long one, the first of many this week. There are many stops. Many adjustments. There is a feeling of unity, though, among the participants, a sense of focus, and a belief in a common creative cause.

The white rat and the black rat are still gnawing at the rope — the rope of time bringing all closer to the magic moment when Rashomon is born before its first audience. Until then, there is dangling over the precipice between a tiger and a dragon ... working ... waiting.

(Ms. Shuler, a long-time member of the Forest Theater Guild, has performed a variety of tasks for the volunteer organization.)

Rehearsal time!

THE "VISIBLY INVISIBLE": Gale Greenburg and Alicia O'Neill are the Kokens or stage managers in traditional Japanese theatre who handle the props on stage. They are dressed in black, move swiftly and silently, and remain on stage during the action. Behind them, Donna Mosley poses in costume as the Medium.

MRS. TOSHI HADA, a specialist in the intricacies of Japanese costuming, fits LaVonne Rae Andrews, left, into a robe.

FORGET THE SHOES! Selko Ito rehearses a complicated dance with her sister, Akemi, behind her. The sisters have danced in many performances, but this will be the first time they appear together in Rashomon.

BACKSTAGE, Michael Lojkovic, the woodcutter, applies his makeup while Selko Ito helps LaVonne Rae Andrews (rear) into her white face.

"TAKE FIVE." LaVonne Rae Andrews pours a cup of tea for Manny Dela Pena during a rehearsal break. In front of them is a cast favorite — a space heater that keeps actors and actresses warm during offstage breaks.

GETTING THE FEEL of his part, Michael Lojkovic, who plays the woodcutter in Rashomon, finds the woods around the outdoor Forest Theater a perfect setting.

Keep your position

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You, White, roll 1-1 in the diagrammed position. How do you play it?

If you move both men down from your midpoint you will have an easy time getting past the Black men on your 8-point; but Black will then have an easy time getting past you. The game will go to the player who rolls bigger numbers.

You have better chances if you move two men from your 4-point to your 2-point. You then have five points made, with an excellent chance to make the 1-point at your next turn.

If Black rolls a six, he must vacate your 8-point; and he will leave a blot unless he rolls 6-5 or 6-6. If Black rolls a five (except 6-5), he will have to start breaking up his board. You may be able to keep your own position and get a shot at Black at the next turn, but even if you have to leave a blot, you will have five points made in your home board, while Black will then have only four points made in his board.

Taking the double one inside your home board doesn't waste the roll if the game becomes a race, and it may give you a big advantage if you get a shot at Black and succeed in hitting him.

Theater review:

An uneven one-man show

By CHRIS HALL

Love Me and the World Is Mine, a one-man tribute to Harpo Marx which opened last week at The Wharf Theatre is an attempt to place an audience in the late comic's living room. In a way it succeeds, since by the show's end the audience knows Harpo more intimately than when they arrived.

The performance opens with Les Marderosian, who plays Marx, entering the stage as the Harpo we all know from films. Off comes the tacky jacket, the mismatched tie and shirt, and finally the blonde wig. Viola! Harpo Marx is at home and entertaining company — the audience. He begins to tell the story of his life, enhancing the monologue with slides, film clips and sound recordings.

We learn of Harpo's boyhood in New York, of his youthful antics with his older brother Chico, and of the Marx Brothers' struggle for theatrical success.

Nearly every aspect of the comic's life has been carefully researched.

When Harpo got his first review, the critic wrote that he ruined his brilliant pantomime whenever he talked. Harpo was never to speak during a performance again, although he was offered $55,000 to utter one word ("murder") in A Night In Casablanca.

During the last decade of his life Harpo suffered from a bad heart and devoted his time to practicing harp and playing golf, until his health forced him to give up even these pleasures.

ALTHOUGH LES Marderosian's characterization is finely honed, the show needs fine tuning. The pacing is sometimes off, some bits don't work, and others need more thought.

Marderosian is at his best when he is not attempting to interact with the technical crew. Likewise, the mixed media approach is most effective when it is unobtrusive and used to highlight the performer's interpretation of the comic genius.

This interpretation is lively and sensitive as long as it is Harpo the man being portrayed, and not Harpo the performer. When Marderosian attempts to re-create some of the comic's classic bits, he usually falls short of his goal. Harpo's performances were highlighted by spontaneity, and these re-creations seem somewhat stiff and calculated by comparison.

In spite of these shortcomings, the show offers a valuable experience to anyone who can't resist the peculiar charm of Marx Brothers comedy. It gives us a wonderful insight into the private life of the most enigmatic of the brothers.

Marderosian is a native of Fresno who currently resides in Salinas. He developed this show as a high school project (he wanted to do Groucho but had no moustache) and perfected it while at Cal State Fresno. He has taken it to Las Vegas, and last summer performed it at the Edinburgh Festival in Scotland. After completing the run at The Wharf he intends to take the show to San Diego and Los Angeles.

The performance is staged with the help of Edward F. Emanuel and utilizes photography by Bill Smith. Kathleen McKinley plays the voice of spouse Susan Marx via magnetic tape.

Love Me and the World Is Mine: A Tribute to Harpo Marx will run through Sept. 7 at The Wharf Theatre in Monterey with performances Wednesday nights and matinees Thursday through Sunday.

'Water' to perform here

Water, a popular club band from Santa Cruz, will perform rock music Thursday through Saturday, Aug. 6-8, at 9:30 p.m. at Fox Hill, Carmel Valley Inn, Los Laureles and Carmel Valley roads.

Original songs and familiar tunes by Steely Dan, The Doobie Brothers, Christopher Cross, The Eagles and Kenny Loggins will be performed by members Don Maxcy, key board; Tim Olson, bass; Dan Downey, rhythm guitar; Jack Hanson, electric guitar; and John Klungnes, drums.

The original band formed in 1966 when Downey and Maxcy played in King Arthur's Court, a five-piece band from Oklahoma. When Maxcy began a four year term in the Air Force, the group broke up, but reunited in the early 70s. Olson joined the band for a year. The band split up again, with the members going in separate directions across the country.

In 1974 Downey and Maxcy joined Olson

in Santa Cruz, instead of starting a duo in Southern California as they had originally planned. The trio became a popular favorite in nightclubs playing mostly songs by America, The Beach Boys, The Association, and Crosby, Stills and Nash.

The group later hired Hanson and Klungnes to create a bigger sound. Hanson was a long-time player with the Dynamic Hots and the Burroughs-Larsen Band from Boulder Creek. Klungnes played with Forty Fingers, a successful local band; he met Hanson in a jazz group, the Unband. With the addition of these two members, the band was able to produce more danceable music.

Steve Hastings of Good Times calls the current Water sound "synthesis of many styles." However, The Beach Boys and The Association still have a big influence on the group. The majority of their original music is serious, but there is "light, corny patter and occasional satire."

Golf champs to tee off at Spyglass

Defending champion John Munro of Sunnyvale Golf Club will face a formidable cast of challengers in the Northern California Golf Association's 16th Public Links Championship, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 7 and 8, at Spyglass Hill Golf Course.

Munro won the title last year by firing a final round 72 for a 36-hole total of 152. However, this year he will have United States Golf Association Public Links Qualifiers: Dean Prince of Sharp Park Golf Club and Arnold Hawkins of Gleneagles Golf Club to contend with, along with Pacific Coast Amateur invitee Dan Hornig of the Fig Garden Golf Club.

Competition will take place in champion (handicaps 4 and lower), president's (handicaps 5-11) and director's (handicaps 12-higher) flights.

All players must have completed sectional qualifying to advance to the tournament proper at Spyglass.

Carroll Canfield, of Ancil Hoffman and Bodega Harbor gold clubs, and Marvin Lindorf, of Walnut Creek and Round Hill clubs are co-chairmen of the vent. For more information phone 624-8241.

Jazz Festival is sold out

The 24th annual Monterey Jazz Festival is sold out; it is the first time in the history of the festival that events have been sold out before the release of individual tickets.

The festival is scheduled for September 18-20.

Festival manager Jimmy Lyons attributes the early success to the increasing popularity of jazz in the U.S.

and especially to increased local interest in the Monterey Jazz Festival this year.

"We're extremely pleased with the reaction of the local community to this year's festival. It is indeed indicative of the growth (of the number) of jazz listeners throughout the country as well as the growth of our festival."

Film review:

Carpenter's great 'Escape'

By LISA JENSEN

Escape From New York. With Kurt Russell, Lee van Cleef and Adrienne Barbeau. Written by John Carpenter and Nick Castle. Directed by John Carpenter. An Avco Embassy release.

CALL HIM "Snake." Thirty-ish, with long, unkempt hair, a burned-out rasp of a voice and a black leather eye-patch, he's a decorated war hero who's turned to a life of crime. He sports an enormous cobra tattoo that rises suggestively from below the waistband of his snug fatigue pants, and the world-weary defiance of a man with nothing left to lose. The only shred of hope he has left is his instinct for self-preservation.

Snake is the hero of John Carpenter's new futuristic thriller, Escape From New York. And if you think he's tough, you should see the bad guys. It's this ideological confusion that gives the film its gutsy edge of moral ambiguity in a world gone completely nuts.

The story is set in 1997, when the entire island of Manhattan has been walled off as a federal maximum security prison. All connecting bridges and tunnels have been mined; the surrounding area is patrolled by an army of sharpshooters and the most sophisticated computer surveillance equipment imaginable. There's no rehabilitation for the hard-core cons and psychotics confined here, and the prison rules are simple: once you're in, you don't come out.

The law of the jungle prevails inside the prison walls. Vicious criminal gangs rove the debris-strewn streets by day, killing each other at will with such primitive but effective weapons as spiked clubs. But they all retreat to the abandoned shells of once-proud metropolitan buildings at night, when the demented crazies rise up out of the subway tunnels to riot through the darkened streets (there's no longer any electricity), leaving a grisly trail of dismembered victims in their wake.

Our hero, Snake Plissken (Kurt Russell), earned his medals flying dangerous missions behind enemy lines during World War III, but he's since gone sour on civilized society and turned his gifts to crime. Captured while looting a bank, Snake has just arrived at police headquarters outside Manhattan, and is about to be dumped over the wall with the rest of the human garbage.

But a funny thing happens to Snake on his way to the pen. Air Force One crashes inside the prison walls, and Police Commissioner Hauk (Lee Van Cleef) has only 22 hours to rescue the President and deliver him to a crucial summit meeting in order to head off a worldwide nuclear disaster. Hauk offers Snake his freedom if he'll take the job, and the war hero reluctantly accepts. But there's a catch: the unscrupulous Hauk rigs it so that if Snake tries to make a break or doesn't complete the mission precisely on time, he'll be killed instantly.

Escape From New York has plenty of raw action (including one of the most exciting slam-bang finales since Hitchcock's heyday), but it's not exactly cheery escapism. Snake's odyssey through this rotting urban landscape populated by cons and psychos is often violent and disturbing, yet is fascinating by challenging our conventional attitude toward crime and punishment.

In confining the action to so limited a time and place and shooting mostly at night, Carpenter and cinematographer Dean Cundey create a savage, nightmarish nether world where surprise plot twists evolve according to their own fractured logic. But this dark vision loses some of its resonance because it exists out of context. All we know about life on the outside is what we can piece together from Hauk's deviousness, the President's platitudes and Snake's cynicism.

But so much of the film is so good that we're willing to forgive this structural imbalance. Carpenter's dry wit and expert control of mood prevails throughout. (Snake's first encounter with the crazies occurs in front of a decrepit Chock Full o' Nuts diner.) Donald Pleasance, Harry Dean Stanton and Adrienne Barbeau provide credible support as Snake's dubious allies; soul-singer Isaac Hayes plays the ultimate ganglord, the Duke of New York, and Carpenter's simple, pulsating musical score provides an undercurrent of nervy tension.

But best of all is Kurt Russell. Because of the larger-than-life iconography of Snake's appearance (that tattoo is almost too much), there is a danger of playing him as all outrageous style and no substance. But Russell has the character completely under control, subtly suggesting the cagey intelligence and long-dormant compassion beneath his hardened exterior.

Once a chubby-cheeked juvenile lead on TV and in Disney comedies, Russell's sexy, no-nonsense performance here re-establishes him as an actor to watch. And the script gives him plenty of sly, terse dialogue. With Russell at its center, Escape From New York blasts through the current crop of lightweight adventures like a hurricane through a roomful of stale cologne.

What's at the movies

Arthur: A comedy with Dudley Moore playing a happy millionaire drunk. Also with Liza Minnelli and John Gielgud. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

Bye Bye Brazil: The adventures of a traveling carnival. Scenes of poor and wealthy areas in Brazil are shown. Full of music and gaiety. A Sunday afternoon show. At the Dream Theatre.

Chu Chu and the Philly Flash: A comedy about two lovable crackpots in San Francisco who find a briefcase containing stolen and valuable government secrets. Before they can collect the reward, they are chased by the cops, the feds, and the crooks. Alan Arkin is Philly Flash, a one-time ace baseball player who winds up in San Francisco's skid row area after years of bad luck and lots of booze. Carol Burnett is Chu Chu, a dance teacher who performs wild dance routines on the street. Rated PG. At the Center Cinemas.

The Empire Strikes Back: Luke Skywalker (Mark Hamill) is lured into the clutches of Darth Vader in this sequel to Star Wars. Visuals and special effects are on a grand scale, and though the rollicking good fun of Star Wars has been replaced by an attempt at deeper meaning, The Empire Strikes Back still provides an evening of great motion picture entertainment. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre.

Eye For An Eye: A kung-fu adventure with martial arts expert Chuck Norris battling the villains. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas.

Eye of the Needle: A suspense adventure with Donald Sutherland

as a Nazi spy in England during World War II, who has an ill-fated love affair with Kate Nelligan. Rated R. At the Dream Theatre.

For Your Eyes Only: The latest James Bond adventure with Roger Moore as the super spy, and Carol Bouquet as a young woman who wants to avenge her parent's death. Many villains, chases and fights. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Heavy Metal: Animation and heavy metal rock music are combined with adventure stories about deep space and futuristic New York and beyond. Each story is dominated by the evil Loch-nar, a "glowing green sphere whose power infects all times, all galaxies, all dimensions." Music is by Black Sabbath, Blue Oyster Cult, Cheap Trick, Devo, Journey, Nazareth, Grand Funk Railroad and more. Rated R. At the Golden Bough Theatre.

No Nukes: A concert movie with a message! Performers in a series of anti-nuclear benefit concerts held last year in Madison Square Garden and at New York City's Battery Park include: James Taylor, Jackson Browne, Bonnie Raitt, Crosby, Stills and Nash, Jesse Colin Young, The Doobie Brothers and Bruce Springsteen. A Friday late show and Saturday afternoon show. At the Dream Theatre.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archaeologist and adventurer who somehow survives while his adversaries are impaled on steel spikes, poison darts, dispatched by an airplane propeller and even melted while competing to find the Ark of the Covenant. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Rocky Horror Picture Show: The sexual confusion of two normal teenagers is compounded by the hilarious antics of the mad Dr. Frank N. Furter, an alien transvestite from the planet Transsexual. The stereotype horror movie/science fiction characters, including a tap-dancing groupie and a demented pair of siblings who serve as the doctor's servants, romp through the movie singing rock and roll of all vintages. Rated R. Saturday's late show at the Dream Theatre.

Stripes: A comedy with Bill Murray as a loser who joins the "new"

U.S. Army to meet girls. Rated R. At the Regency.

Superman II: In this new adventure, Superman battles three outlaws from Krypton, who have his same super powers. The love story between Superman and Lois Lane also continues. Christopher Reeve is Superman, Margot Kidder is Lois Lane and Gene Hackman is villain Lex Luthor. Rated PG. At the Cinema 70.

Raiders of the Lost Ark: Written by George Lucas and directed by Steven Spielberg. Harrison Ford plays Indiana Jones, an archaeologist and adventurer who somehow survives while his adversaries are impaled on steel spikes, poison darts, dispatched by an airplane propeller and even melted while competing to find the Ark of the Covenant. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Tarzan the Ape Man: A new erotic version of the Edgar Rice Burroughs tale. This version centers around Jane Parker (Bo Derek), who goes on a jungle safari searching for her long-lost explorer father (Richard Harris). She meets the fearless, mute Tarzan, (Miles O'Keefe) who falls in love with her, and helps her fight wild lions, snakes, elephants and jungle plants. Filmed in exotic Sri Lanka and the Seychelles Islands. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre.

Under the Rainbow: A comedy adventure about midgets and the movies. Carrie Fisher plays a movie studio talent coordinator and Chevy Chase plays a Secret Service agent. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas.

Victory: During World War II, a group of war prisoners are matched against the Nazis in a game of soccer. The game is staged to illustrate the Nazis' athletic prowess, but the prisoners decide amongst themselves to use this time to escape. With Sylvester Stallone, Michael Caine, Max Von Sydow and Pele. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Sunset Views*Arts endowment faces budget cuts

By RICHARD TYLER

HERE IS THE latest on the status of the National Endowment for the Arts, as reported in the State of the Arts.

Decision day moves closer in Washington as the National Endowment for the Arts budget proceeds through the legislative labyrinth. After President Reagan's proposed budget cuts garnered crushing majorities in both houses of Congress, the spotlight moved to the various authorizing and appropriations panels. It is in these committees that specific dollar amounts for the NEA will be set for the first time.

Both the Senate and the House gave the Reagan budget overwhelming approval in May. In the Senate, a 78-20 majority symbolically endorsed the budget. In the House, the vote was 253-176 for the first resolution. Those votes mean only that the Congress gave theoretical support to Reagan's proposals; the time has now come for sub-committees and committees to get down to brass tacks and decide exactly who gets what.

The action taken by Sen. Robert Stafford's (R-Vt.) Authorizing Sub-Committee on Education, Arts, and Humanities indicates that the lopsided votes do not compel the Congress to cut the NEA by 50 percent. The sub-committee was the first to take action to lock a figure onto the NEA's 1982 budget, voting to set a ceiling at $119 million. That represents about a thirty-percent cut to the endowment. It is up to Sen. James McClure's (R-Ida.) Appropriations Sub-committee on Interior and Related Agencies to come up with a figure that does not exceed $119 million.

The Senate appropriations sub-committee "will not decide until July," according to staff member Linda Richardson. Following the sub-committee's action, its recommendation will go to the full Appropriations Committee chaired by Sen. Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.).

SENATOR STAFFORD'S sub-committee took the unexpected step of going to the endowment's 1981 budget and voting to rescind $9 million. That vote must go to the full authorizing committee; the outcome is uncertain. Should the full committee go along with the rescission, the parallel authorizing panels in the House would have to concur before the $9 million could be removed from the NEA's current budget.

Meanwhile, David Stockman's Office of Management and Budget introduced its own figure of $6.65 million to be rescinded from the NEA's 1981 budget. (The arts community had heard the rescission request would be as high as $32 million.) The rescission, sent to Congress June 8, must be approved within 45 days to become effective.

Both the House authorizing and appropriations sub-committees were expected to set dollar figures for the NEA's 1982 budget some time in June. Once that occurs, the full appropriations committee will act on the recommendations during July.

Following the various committee votes on how much to give to the NEA, their recommendations will be voted on by the entire membership of the Senate and the House of Representatives. Two conflicting figures will emerge from this complex process, and the differences will be settled by a conference committee made up of both Senators and Representatives.

While this machinery is working, I shall try to keep you informed as to what is happening. The arts are everyone's responsibility and we must guard against the denial of our involvement by government or private industry.

Petpourri

Trouble-free traveling

By JUDITH A. EISNER

LAST WEEK we mentioned some of the requirements for taking your pet along on a family vacation and tried to stress the owner's responsibility for the pet's actions.

Many motels and hotels across the country accept pets as overnight guests. Whether or not they continue this practice depends on how each guest controls his pet during his stay.

The motels you may encounter that refuse to accept dogs or cats are almost always those who have had negative experiences.

There are a number of simple courtesies and precautions every pet owner should heed when staying at a motel:

- Do not leave animals loose in the bedroom where they may damage caprets, drapes and furniture. If you must leave your pet in a motel room, confine him to the bathroom or to his crate or carrier.

- Be absolutely certain that your dog does not howl when left alone. Other guests have a right to a peaceful evening.

- When feeding pets, spread newspaper under food dishes; discard empty cans, etc. in wastebaskets. Do not leave uneaten food for the motel staff to clean up!

- If your pet messes the room, you are responsible for cleaning it up as well as you can, and for the repair of any permanent damages.

- Do not use motel towels or linens as bedding for your pets.

- Check with the manager about where you may take your pet for exercise and to relieve himself. Don't assume that the nearest lawn or flower bed is there for your convenience. Abuse of this type is responsible for motels refusing to accept any pets.

- On the morning of your departure, invite the manager to inspect the room voluntarily, and be sure to thank him for accepting your pet as a guest. If more people called attention to their pet's good behavior, it might counteract the publicity the badly behaved pets receive.

IF YOUR VACATION includes visits to scenic areas, national parks or historic monuments, there are rules governing dogs' behavior that must be obeyed.

In national parks, for instance, dogs must be kept on leash unless they are in your car.

National parks are there for the preservation of scenic beauty and the conservation of indigenous wildlife; they are not your dog's personal hunting preserve.

As long as dogs are kept under complete control and do no damage, they will continue to be welcome at these places, but their position is always somewhat tenuous. Don't be the one to jeopardize this privilege.

In some parks, people traveling with pets are restricted to use of certain campsites. This is done on the theory that not everyone wants to have dogs camping next door. It pays to check with the park service about restrictions when you reserve your campsites.

We mentioned bringing along a tie-out chain. If you are camping out and cannot confine your pet in a camping vehicle, the safest thing is to chain him to a tree during the night and whenever you must leave the campsite.

The wildlife in the area may prove a strong lure for the gentlest dog, and the scent of a deer herd moving through the forest, or a bear foraging in waste cans may incite dogs to chew through a leash and take off in pursuit.

Although we do not like to chain any dog, under camp conditions, we feel it is the safest thing to do.

SHOULD YOUR PET become ill on the road, it is usually a simple matter to locate competent veterinary assistance. We have known of dogs and cats who have been left at a veterinary clinic for a day or two for treatment while their families continued to sightsee, and who have been picked up on their return.

We have mentioned all these do's and don'ts not to discourage you from taking your pet along, but to prepare you in advance for the things you must consider.

Taking a pet on vacation isn't simply a matter of confinement and control, but also one of enjoyment. There are plenty of opportunities for your pet to get out and stretch and enjoy himself — beaches where he is welcome to run, lakes to swim in, hikes to hike.

The thing to remember is that your pet will be a thousand times happier going with you than being left at home in an empty house with a pet sitter stopping in twice a day, or in a strange boarding kennel.

For the average pet, just being able to join his family is happiness enough. So we wouldn't worry too much about entertaining him along the way.

Lemon dishes on Cook's Club menu

The Cooks' Club will offer free demonstrations Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 8 and 9 and a class on the preparation of Greek food Wednesday, Aug. 12.

The preparation of lemon dessert and lemon bread will be demonstrated Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Peppercorn restaurant, The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel.

The preparation of marinated chicken breasts stuffed with almonds and mushrooms will be demonstrated at the same times Sunday, Aug. 9.

There is no charge to watch these demonstrations.

On Wednesday, Aug. 12 the club will offer a class at 4 p.m. on the preparation of a Greek meal.

The meal will include suppa avgolemeono (egg-lemon soup), tiropites (fillo dough layered with cheese custard), kota kapama (sauteed chicken in a cinnamon-flavored sauce), spanakorizo (spinach and rice), and amigthalopita (almond paste filling between a buttery crust and apricot preserves.)

Wine is served during the class and with dinner. The class is $15 and students eat the meal; the class begins at 4 p.m.

Reservations are required for classes and are confirmed only when payment is received. The dinner is served at 7:30. For more information phone 625-0100.

Santa Cruz County Symphony auditions

Auditions for the 1981-82 Santa Cruz County Symphony season will be held Sept. 14 through 18 at Sesnon House at Cabrillo College. Music Director and Conductor Kenneth Klein invites all interested musicians to participate in the auditions, which are also required for returning symphony players.

The symphony season begins in October and runs through April. Musicians are paid for rehearsal time and concert performances. For the auditions, prospective players should prepare major and minor scales, a slow and fast movement from a concerto or sonata, an orchestral repertoire selection, and do sight reading.

Interested musicians should contact the symphony office at (408) 462-0553 on weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. to arrange for an appointment.

FENCER, by Imogen Cunningham, is one of a collection of works by the world-famous photographer now on display at Photography West Gallery at Ocean and Dolores, Carmel, through Sept. 30. The show includes vintage prints made by Cunningham herself and Trust prints made by her son, Ron Partridge. The gallery is open from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Wine and cheese party to honor two artists

On Friday, August 7th, at 8 p.m., there will be a wine and cheese reception at The Gallery in Carmel Valley in honor of Amy Carroll, whose angel paintings will be exhibited. Joan Hopkins will sing her angel songs, accompanied on her guitar-lute.

The two artists are part of the "August Fest," featuring "Women in Art," taking place at The Gallery every Friday and Saturday evening. They have collaborated on a book of 24 angel songs which will be published by Pythagoras Press early next year. Ms. Carroll's pen and ink illustrations will be on view, together with several of her large canvasses which have previously been shown at the Mandala bookstore in Pacific Grove.

Ms. Hopkins sings every Friday at Dorie D'Angelo's Healing Circle in Carmel and also at Father Charlie Moore's Sunday services. Two of her children's musicals have been performed by MPC and several Peninsula schools.

Marjorie Chomiak will display her semi-abstract oils at the gallery Friday and Saturday, Aug. 8.

The gallery will feature the following artists on the following days:

Friday, Aug. 14, Susan Dupree, wood sculpture; Sat. Aug. 15, Marjorie van Peski's songs, photography and poetry; Friday, Aug. 21 Janet Steinberg — self-evolution through painting; Saturday, Aug. 22 readings by Helga Burch; Friday, Aug. 28 Joan Cobb Hopkins reading the poetry of Scribner Cobb, films by Chris Hopkins; Saturday, Aug. 29 Irish music.

Everyone is welcome to the receptions, which are scheduled for 8-11 p.m. The gallery is behind Will's Fargo restaurant, next to the New Age Craft Center in the Village Center on Carmel Valley Road.

Regular gallery hours are 2-5 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday. For more information phone 659-4484 or 659-2086.

Literary greats are featured in MPC course

Monterey Peninsula College will encourage Peninsulans to take a look at their environment through the writings of four literary greats who lived here — Robert Louis Stevenson, Robinson Jeffers, John Steinbeck, and Henry Miller — when fall classes begin, Aug. 19.

Called "Humanities 195: Four Peninsula-Inspired Literary Greats," the course will be accompanied by a field trip "lab" featuring tours of places important in these writers' lives and writings.

Classes will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11:10 a.m. in Room B-7. The tour lab — Humanities 196 — can be taken independently of the class and will be held on alternate Fridays and Saturdays, beginning August 28, according to Elayne W. Fitzpatrick, course "catalyst." She is a teacher-writer who holds degrees in English and philosophy.

Places to be visited will include ruins of the Stevenson cabin in Robinson Canyon, Robert Louis Stevenson School, Stevenson House, Point Pinos lighthouse, Tor House, Point Lobos, the Big Sur coast and Point Sur, Steinbeck House and Steinbeck Library in Salinas, Hopkins Marine Station, Doc Ricketts' Lab and Cannery Row, Steinbeck's Pacific Grove and Monterey homes, Partington Ridge in Big Sur, the Coast Gallery, Deetjen's, Nepenthe, and the new Henry Miller Museum to be opened in September in Emil White's Big Sur home.

Tours and classes will include readings from selected writings of the literary greats and conversations with people who knew them. Some attention will also be given to other literary figures and artists who were, and are still, inspired by this area including George Sterling, Jack London, Mary Austin, Arnold Genthe, Jaime de Angulo, Eric Barker, Lillian Bos and Harry Dick Ross, Gordon Newell, James Hunolt, Bob Nash, and Robin Coventry.

For more information phone 646-4063.

Blaisdell film showing

Robert Blaisdell, a Monterey Peninsula native, is celebrating twenty years of film making with a retrospective at the Sunset Theater in Carmel. The free film showing will be Wednesday, Aug. 12 at 8 p.m. at the Sunset Theater, 9th and San Carlos, Carmel.

The retrospective will include many films shot locally, including the one-hour documentary on the history of Big Sur.

Blaisdell started working as a professional photographer in high school and progressed to cinematography in 1961; he has filmed for Paramount Pictures, CBS, and NBC.

Thirty years of photography and twenty years of film making have taken him all over the United States, South America, Europe, Africa, and the Pacific.

The retrospective is sponsored by the city of Carmel and the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission. For more information phone 624-3996.

Father Farrell's wisdom

A recipe for wisdom

Invocation to the Carmel Rotary Club
July 29, 1981

THIS MORNING at 2 a.m., together with a reputed audience of 600,000,000 to 750,000,000 other T.V. viewers, I watched the royal wedding, coming live by satellite in glorious Technicolor.

The wedding took place at Christopher Wren's 17th-century masterpiece, St. Paul's Cathedral, Ludgate Hill in the city of London. Charles, the Prince of Wales, of the House of Windsor, heir to the British throne, married Lady Diana Frances Spencer in a ceremony the British do so well.

It was marked by joy, tradition, romance, pomp and dignity. Some of us are Angolophiles, as I am — and I have valid reasons — and I think most Americans rejoice as I do in this pageantry, which is a needed lift to the British spirits in a trying time.

However, there are others, republicans by preferences (I refer to the principles, not the party), and all the customs and hoopla leave them irked or unmoved. When King Solomon, the son of David, as a young man began his rule of Israel, he asked Almighty God to grant him wisdom and a discerning heart to rule well and wisely. He stated that true wisdom is based on conforming in all things to God's will.

Looking at the royal wedding and its religious ceremony and ritual, some of us will see wisdom, goodness and justice; others will not; as we do in other historic events of our times and in our own lives. However, I exhort you to pray for Prince Charles and Lady Diana as they begin their married life and remember all other newlyweds beginning the state of matrimony. Pray that their lives together may grow and prosper and that they may become a reflection of God's love for the whole human family.

So ends my sermon-prayer for today, July 29th, 1981. Frankly, if you think practicing what you preach is difficult, just try preaching what you practice. Amen.

her longevity to wholesome food and a happy home in Carmel Valley.

She is survived by her daughter, Hertha Gerlitz of Carmel Valley; a grandson and two great-granddaughters.

Hazel Downey

Hazel Daulton Downey, 96, a Carmel resident since 1961, died last week at Driftwood Convalescent Hospital after a period of failing health.

She was a 1904 graduate of the Kings Conservatory of Music in San Jose. She taught music in Madera and Modesto.

Survivors include her husband Hugh; daughters, Mildred (Mrs. Theodore) Grenfell of Carmel and Meredith (Mrs. Lloyd) Kohler of San Francisco; sister, Erma Hatch of Modesto; four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The family suggested memorial contributions of the Trinity Episcopal Church of Madera.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The battle of the bulge

By RALPH RETHERFORD, M.D.

TRYING TO LOSE WEIGHT? Despairing of ever being thin again? If so, don't give up. First of all, you've got a lot of company. Depending on whose statistics you read, somewhere between 40 and 60 percent of the adults in America are overweight. So if you are worried about how you look, keep in mind that every second person you meet is going to look more or less the same as you.

But you say you've tried umpteen different diets and lost weight time and time again only to gain it back after you stop dieting? Again, don't despair: this is the usual pattern. And if dieting is like smoking, the more times you've tried to quit the more likely you are to be successful the next time. So don't get discouraged if you have had a lot of failures; maybe you are just building up your resolve so that you really can be successful next time.

SO HOW DOES ONE go about losing weight and, more importantly, keeping it off? Naturally, the whole thing is a lot easier if you never get fat in the first place, but unfortunately our environment is very conducive to our becoming overweight. For example, did you know that back at the turn of the century people actually ate more calories than we do today? In spite of eating more, however, there was not nearly as much problem with overweight as there is now. The difference is that they got much more exercise than we modern Americans do. Back in the old days you had to walk or ride a horse just about everywhere you went, burning up many more calories than are lost sitting in a car. Everyday chores around the house used to involve a lot of physical work, whereas nowadays, with all our convenience appliances, there is very little actual energy expenditure involved in our day-to-day existence. Even going to the bathroom used to take some energy, as you had to walk to the outhouse and maybe shiver a little trying to keep warm.

The combination of our sedentary lifestyle and all the rich high-calorie foods that are so readily available adds up to overweight for many of us. If you are overweight you will be happy to know that this does not mean that you eat like a pig. This is a common misconception; most people assume that overweight people are closet eaters. While there are many compulsive overeaters, there are probably an equal number of overweight people whose eating habits are very similar to those of many of their slimmer friends.

It has been shown in metabolic studies that some people have a much greater tendency to gain weight than others. You can take two people and put them under identical laboratory conditions, feed them both an identical number of calories and give them identical exercise levels, and one will become fat while the other will remain slim. We don't know for sure whether this is an inherited metabolic feature or whether it depends on the way that personalities interact with the physical body. However, if you do have a tendency to gain weight it is definitely a liability and it won't do any good to wish that you were one of those disgusting people who can eat all they want, never exercise, and never gain a pound. (As one of those disgusting people myself, I can say that it is very nice.)

IN ORDER TO LOSE weight and maintain your desired weight you obviously have to do two things. You have to eat fewer calories and you have to exercise more to burn up more calories. The less you exercise, the more you have to restrict how much you eat in order to lose weight. There are several ways to reduce your caloric intake. You can go on a fast, which is the fastest way to lose weight (no pun intended), but you will probably go back to your old ways upon finishing your fast, and gain those precious lost pounds right back. You can take diet pills to decrease your appetite, but again, as soon as you stop taking the diet pills, the weight comes right back again. You can go on one of the fad diets which are always available, but most people stay on these diets just long enough to lose 10 or 20 pounds and then return to their old eating habits—only to gain the weight back again.

The problem with all of these approaches is that while they allow you to lose weight they don't allow you to maintain your new weight over the long term. In order to do this you have to change your eating habits. If you are cursed with the type of metabolism that makes you gain weight on the average American diet you have to learn how to select and prepare foods that will give you eating satisfaction with fewer calories. One excellent way to accomplish this is by joining an organization like Weight-Watchers. Weight-Watchers teaches you how to control your caloric intake and gives you the support necessary to maintain this over the long haul. If you have some motivation, however, you can do it on your own, and there is the approach that I recommend.

Most people when they diet simply keep eating the same kinds of foods but try to cut down the quantity. This approach is doomed to failure because you can leave the table hungry for only so long. When you first start dieting your motivation is very high and you are willing to go through the discomfort of being hungry a good deal of the time. There comes a point, however, when most people are no longer willing to endure the discomfort and they start eating more in order to satisfy their appetite. So in order to be successful on your own you need somehow to be able to eat your fill and yet consume fewer calories. How is this possible? By eating foods which are high in bulk and low in calories.

IT IS NECESSARY to avoid foods which are high in fat and sugar, the two most concentrated sources of calories. Now this approach does require self-discipline, as it means that many of your customary favorite foods will have to be avoided, but at least you don't have to leave the table hungry. You can eat your fill of low-fat, low-sugar food stuffs.

The following is a partial list of high-fat foods which are to be avoided as much as possible. Egg yolks, mayonnaise, oils of all kinds, shortening of all kinds, foods containing significant quantities of oil or shortening, high-fat meats, butter and margarine, cheese except small amounts of low-fat cottage cheese or mozzarella, ice cream, whole milk and 2 percent milk, yogurt, buttermilk, avocados, nuts, nut butters, olives, and soybeans.

High-sugar foods to be avoided include honey, fructose, white and brown sugar, molasses, soft drinks, cookies, pies, cakes, pastries, candy, flavored yogurt and kefir, jams and jellies (except for low-sugar varieties), and dried fruit.

I told you that you would have to restrict the intake of a lot of your favorite foods. It is a choice between this and being fat and I never said it would be easy. But before you despair, I have been on this diet for its long-term health benefits, and I speak from personal experience when I say that there are many delicious foods that you can have and eat all you want of while avoiding the high-calorie culprits listed above. For those of you who are interested in exploring this further, the best source that I know of is Nathan Pritikin's The Pritikin Program for Diet and Exercise. This book goes into great detail as to the types of foods that you can eat and the types to avoid. It also has a large section of recipes that will help you learn how to prepare foods that are low in fat and sugar.

For those of you who have been reading my columns regularly, you will see that these dietary recommendations will help you not only to lose weight and maintain your weight but, even more important, they will help you maintain your health as well. The most important thing is that you approach your new way of eating as a life-long commitment to changing your eating habits, and not as a short-term diet.

Pick the right suit

"I'm filing a complaint," South announced after mangling today's hand. "Finesses aren't what they used to be. I want my money back."

South had captured the king of spades with the ace, entered dummy with a heart and lost the club finesse. Back came a spade, and South needed a diamond trick. Down one.

South felt aggrieved because East didn't have the king of clubs for his overcall, but South's complaint is disallowed. At the third trick he should lead a low diamond rather than the queen of clubs.

CANNOT LOSE

If East has the king of clubs South cannot lose his contract no matter which minor suit he leads at the third trick. If West has the king of clubs, South's best chance is to tackle diamonds first.

If East plays the ace of diamonds, South should get four diamond tricks and won't need the club finesse. If East can play a low diamond, South steals one diamond trick with the queen and then enters dummy with a heart to try the club finesse.

DAILY QUESTION

You open with one club, partner bids one spade, and you bid one notrump. He then raises to two notrump. The opponents pass. You hold: ♠ A Q ♥ Q 7 5 3 ♦ Q 5 4 ♣ A 9 5 3. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three notrump. Count something extra for the A-Q of partner's suit, and you then have enough to accept the invitation. If you had two low spades and 14 points in the other suits you would have a borderline hand and might well decide to pass at two notrump.

FOUR-PLEX— PACIFIC GROVE

On a quiet residential street in the heart of Pacific Grove, amidst flowered walkways and trees, the atmosphere of a small country town is still to be found. Built in the early 1900's, with an eye to variety, privacy and comfort, this 12-room, two-story residence has been converted into four apartments. In an era of modular look-alikes, what could be more appealing than to come home to a spot where each path, window, door, level and corner is different... A wise idea — a wise investment. $227,000.

CONDO—CARMEL HIGH MEADOWS

Minutes away from downtown Carmel, on the highest hillside point, and surrounded by beautiful views is a very special home. This two-story, three-bedroom townhouse with its 22' cathedral ceilings, woodburning fireplace, private decks and secluded patios... its handsome teak woodwork, imported ceramic tile and fine carpeting offers the optimum in quiet, spacious living. An oversize double garage and some 500 square feet left for expansion complete an already perfect picture. If you miss the sophistication of the city, yet yearn for the whisper of the pines, this elegant condominium is the answer. $280,000.

NEW LISTING CARMEL CLASSIC

This gracious Carmel residence is typical of the architecture of the 1930's — beam ceilings and real plaster, hardwood floors and spacious rooms. Two bedrooms (one a unique second-story retreat, one a master suite), a special solarium, a modern kitchen all grace a ½-acre site with landscaping reminiscent of an arboretum. Most desirable Hatton Fields location. Priced at $329,000 and owner will carry with 20% down.

PACIFIC GROVE LANDMARK

"The Boulders" is possibly the most admired and well-known home on the Monterey Peninsula. The massive wall that surrounds the main house and guest house was built in the late 1800's. This Pacific Grove home is a marvel of craftsmanship — leaded, beveled glass, rich mahogany woods, brick exterior and tile roof. The massive carved lion guards the treasures within. Stroll through gardens, pond, walkways and gaze out to the sea. Watch the surprise sailboats, and the ever-changing colors of the harbor. In perfect condition and ready for the very discriminating buyer. If you are ready for the best this area has to offer then call for an appointment. Asking $500,000.

CARMEL HIGHLANDS

Frank Lloyd Wright

Would love the feeling this home creates with its surroundings. Harmony best describes the blending of its inside and outside spaces. Extreme care & sensitivity best describes the efforts that designer/builder Joseph Stevens went to in building this home of wood and glass. Southern exposures provide energy saving passive solar efforts. Skylights make every room bright without lights. Vaulted ceiling make the oversized rooms feel even more spacious. Mature landscaping and a dramatic master bath make this a bargain at $360,000. AND BELOW MARKET INTEREST RATES! Call John.

WE LOVE THESE PROPERTIES WE THINK YOU WILL TOO

CARMEL

The owner has loved it, too, lavishing care and taste on the right property. Right because of the location, two blocks from town and three from the beach, and all on a lot big enough for a guest house. With two-bedroom suites and the lot potential, the perfect weekend, and the owner will consider the financing at $365,000. Come by and see it this weekend at open house.

Close to town and the new Forest Hill Park, this large family home features interesting design, three separate one bedroom suites, four fireplaces, wraparound decks, warm pecky-cedar walls & ceilings, and a workable kitchen. Too, the terms are excellent, with owners willing to be very flexible on downpayment and payments on the loan. Just reduced to $290,000. Also open this weekend.

It's like living in Big Sur, you're so much part of nature. With two-bedroom suites upstairs and a separate studio downstairs, it also provides a very flexible living arrangement. Freeform decks, marble barbecue with lighter, seven-pool waterfall. A most interesting home, and the owners are flexible on terms. $290,000.

Newly listed, and a real stunner for lovers of contemporary design. Just seconds away from the center of town and shopping, it has three bedrooms and two baths, complete kitchen, decks, and the warmth of real wood and stained glass everywhere. Good financing available at $329,500.

If an ocean view is what you crave, see this absolutely panoramic view of Carmel Beach, Pebble Beach, and all of the Pacific. Two bedrooms and two baths on famed Scenic Road in Carmel. Charming, red oak floors and a brand new kitchen, plus a double garage. Excellent financing available at $660,000.

The double lot's the thing — South of Ocean Avenue. Mature oaks, and the charm of a remodeled two-bedroom home with artist's loft. Much redwood, pine and oak. Flexible financing at $375,000.

Another splendid view of Carmel Beach, but from a different angle on Carmel Point. You'll recognize the potential in the home immediately, and your imagination may be able to turn it around. Come by and see it at our open house this weekend. $339,000.

CARMEL VALLEY

Tucked back into Robinson Canyon is a three-bedroom and three-bath home that has been lovingly cared for and improved, but has left something for you to do. The present owners have added a hot-tub/deck off the master bedroom suite, and opened the inside to allow the kind of entertaining you wish. On more than an acre, with room for a pool in addition to the fish pond already there, a good value at $395,000.

High on a hill and in the sun, with expansive views down Carmel Valley, a three-bedroom and two-bath home that combines the best of indoor/outdoor, formal/informal living. A handsome home in a good location in Mid-Valley for $235,000.

PACIFIC GROVE

Newly listed, a three-bedroom and two-bath home in one of the best locations in this former Methodist Campground. A really spectacular ocean view could be obtained from a second story, and the owner is willing to be very generous with terms. This may be the one you've been looking for at $215,000.

SIERRA NEVADA

Imagine 100 acres for your own personal getaway just north of Yosemite. It's unspoiled, but improved, with a two-bedroom A-frame overlooking a very large lake stocked with fish. The good breathing air is free. $395,000, and the owners will carry the financing.

ELEGANT CONTEMPORARY IN PRESTIGIOUS PEBBLE BEACH

This exceptional and immaculate property is certainly the area's best buy! Located in lovely Sunridge Pines, this home portrays quiet elegance within a superb California contemporary design. Less than four years old, it encompasses over 1,900 square feet with three bedrooms, each with own full bath; formal dining room; a large living room with a soaring open beamed ceiling and custom fireplace; a lavishly equipped kitchen with top quality built-ins including Jenn-Air range grill, dishwasher and disposal; a family room-sun room addition highlighted by an open beam plexiglass ceiling that brings in both warmth and light. Mirrored closet doors, a fire detector system, oak parquet flooring, custom drapes and carpet, high quality hardware and beautiful ceramic tile are but a few of the amenities. Outdoors, you will find two large aggregate concrete patios accented by shrubs and landscaping, extensive lighting, a two-car garage with Genie door openers, and the entire property is fenced. Proudly offered at $285,000, and the owners will carry back a first Deed of Trust of $150,000 for five years at 13.5%

SPECTACULAR NEW OCEAN VIEW HOME!

Fantastic white water and golf course views abound from this new, contemporary, Pebble Beach home. This gorgeous home features 4,580 square feet with soaring, open-beam ceilings, four bedrooms, 4½-baths, formal dining room, family room, huge kitchen with breakfast area, two tiled wet bars, custom Jacuzzi, and three huge fireplaces. Quality construction is evident throughout, and this lovely property also backs to the greenbelt. An incredible home with a million dollar view!! Best buy at $595,000. ### Five Bedrooms Near Carmel Point

Family homes of this size are pretty rare in this area, and this one is an unusual value. It's located on the northwest corner of 16th and Monte Verde, near the River School and a half-block from where Monte Verde ends at the Bird Sanctuary. The ocean is just a short walk away.

A high fence surrounds the whole lot, and inside, the grounds are thoughtfully landscaped for easy maintenance: a paved and private patio, an enclosed play yard at the rear, attractive and well established planting all about.

The living room is at your left as you enter, a 29 x 14 salon paneled in mahogany, with giant picture windows on two sides opening to broad views of the mountains and the mouth of the Valley. A wide fireplace of flat bricks rises from floor to ceiling on the east wall.

Just to your right is a dining room with corner windows, and across a counter opening is the efficient family kitchen. Full length louvered doors can be closed to screen off this area. Built-in oven, refrigerator, dishwasher and trash compactor are all included; there's an abundance of dark wood cabinets; and the corner sink under corner windows provides an inviting, sunny space. The kitchen rounds the corner and leads to a laundry room complete with washer and dryer, to the sizeable 2nd bath, and to 2 of the 5 bedrooms.

The other 3 bedrooms lie along a broad, artfully papered corridor that runs through the center of the house between the living room and sleeping areas. The master bedroom, with windows south and west, is at the end of this hallway. Next comes the No. 1 bath, then 2 bedrooms, one of which easily doubles as a den. All 5 bedrooms are large, ranging from 14 x 12 to 16 x 13; and convenient built-in shelves, cabinets and work spaces are featured in several.

This is a highly functional house, beautifully decorated and well maintained. It was built in 1959 and has 2250 sq. ft. Just reduced to $239,500 and in this premium location, it's a superior buy.

PLEASURE AND PRIDE

THE PLEASURE OF LIVING and the pride of ownership of this gracious home in a prime south of Ocean Avenue location can be yours today. With three bedrooms and three baths, it is for the discerning buyer who is looking for an investment in quiet luxury, seclusion and lovely gardens. A spacious living room with nine-foot ceiling can be arranged for several conversational groupings, with still enough room for a grand piano. The dining room has an attractive outlook to the landscaped patio, as do the kitchen and commodious master bedroom. Altogether a home of much distinction and one that has been lovingly maintained. By appointment. $525,000.

CARMEL HIGHLANDS

A DESIGNER-BUILT contemporary home near the north entrance of Spindrift Road wonderfully constructed from native woods and top-quality materials. With three bedrooms and 2½ baths, this home offers an open spacious floor plan for easy living and entertaining. Ownership will give you a key to a private beach just 400 feet away. There is a $250,000 first loan and the highly motivated seller will carry back a generous second. Asking $530,000.

"DRAGONPINES," CARMEL HIGHLANDS

BREATHTAKING VIEWS of stern coast and rugged canyon . . . utter seclusion, yet a short distance to shopping or business at the Carmel Rancho. The handsome living room has massive beams above the wide, elevated fireplace and picture windows that look out to blue Pacific and massive Mal Paso Canyon. The large master bedroom (also with ocean views) has an unusually fine tiled bath. The second bedroom (it, too, has an ocean view) has a bath large enough to accommodate the washer/dryer in the most convenient location. There is a spacious 20 x 40 family room with a separate entry off the courtyard. This room, with its own fireplace, and own small kitchen becomes a separate apartment or commodious guest quarters. A superb studio of 600 square feet has excellent lighting, shelving and storage. The views from the other side of this unusual house are of the rugged Mal Paso Canyon, tempered by the soothing sounds of the creek below. Complete new carpeting of top quality, and new parquet hardwood flooring. Ample parking and several decks and patios make this home desirable for entertaining. Oh yes, there is a third bedroom . . . $650,000.

Captivating Contemporary

On a secluded cul-de-sac, and further sequestered by the fences enclosing a large lot, this meticulously maintained and lovingly-lived-in home features enhancements contributed by creative owners. These include garnering pebbles for the mosaic paving on the front doorstep and in the handsome entrance hall with a wall of native granite.

The living room features a beamed wood ceiling, fireplace of native granite with a metal hood fashioned by Francis Whitaker of Forge in the Forest fame, grasscloth covered walls and sliding glass doors opening to the south patio.

The kitchen, emphasizing thoughtful planning in placement of appliances, counters, cabinets and an adjacent laundry alcove, extends into dining space with a built-in buffet and window wall access to the patio off the living room.

Paneling and beamed ceilings distinguish the master suite which has a den opening to a second patio. Built-in drawers, bookcases and cabinets are found in the wallpapered second bedroom adjacent to another, and tiled, bathroom.

Carefully collected pebbles are incorporated into panels enhancing the paving in the south patio which is enclosed by the house, redwood fencing and a carport off which is a workshop room. A third patio, beside the entrance, adds to enjoyment of low-care landscaping thoughtfully chosen to provide pleasure as well as to augment the privacy of this property within the city limits of Carmel. $225,000

WHY IT CAN COST MORE TO USE YOUR ELECTRIC APPLIANCES FROM NOON TO SIX.

On hot afternoons, people often demand more electricity than PG&E can produce. Then we have to buy power from outside sources. Sometimes at a very high price. Rev up our less efficient power plants. Use more oil. This leads to higher bills for everyone. But if people will conserve in the critical hours—noon to six P.M.—it will save many millions.
